SISTER PLEADS WITH FOSS FOR RICHESON'S LIFE

FOSS TO DECIDE ON RICHESON APPEAL TOMORROW

MRS. EDDY'S BEQUEST UPHELD

$3,000,000 EDDY FUND IS VALID

CONCORD, N. H., May 7.—The New Hampshire Supreme Court rendered a decision this noon in which it declares, upon a statement of facts before the court, the $3,000,000 trust fund created for the "Mother Church" in Boston by the will of Mary Baker G. Eddy is valid.

This opinion is rendered by Chief Justice Frank N. Parsons. The other four justices concur.

The court suggests, however, an amendment to the bill of the contestant, George W. Glover, son of the testator.

The decision rendered to-day is in no way final, although it is a serious setback to the contestant.

The counsel for the contestant, Glover, undoubtedly will amend his bill to comply with the suggestions of the court.

The case arose out of the provision of the will of Mrs. Eddy which ordered that the greater part of her fortune be given in trust to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, the "Mother church," for the dissemination of Christian Science.

The case went to the Supreme Cour on demurrers filed by attorneys for the estate.

Strikers Go Back Gloating to Books

Durham, N. H., Students Claim a "Moral Victory" in Case of Suspended Class President.

DURHAM, N. H., May 7.—Recitations were resumed today by the striking students at New Hampshire State College, with the students claiming a "moral victory." The students declared they did not vote to go back regardless of what disposition the trustees made of the case of President W. H. L. Brackett, of the sophomore class. They told President Gibbs they would go back, but that if Brackett was not treated well they would strike again.

Brackett, whose suspension for the rest of the term caused the strike, will return to college next week Wednesday, shortening his suspension to two weeks. He is to be on probation, however, which means he cannot play ball. As he is the lightning shortstop of the college team he is badly needed, and the athletic association began a movement to get Brackett's suspension lifted.

The sixteen "co-eds" who went out returned today with the boys. The only four girls who didn't strike are freshman. They would have liked to strike, but father and mother would not let them.

PRESIDENT TAFT ATTENDS BALL GAME

CINCINNATI, May 7.—President Taft today threw political cares to the winds and spent a day of recreation and rest. During the morning an informal reception was held for his friends and neighbors, while the afternoon was given over to attendance at the baseball game between the Philadelphia and Cincinnati clubs.

ARMY ORDERED TO BE IN READINESS TO MOVE TOWARD MEXICAN BORDER

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Army posts all over the country have been ordered to hold their men in readiness to move on the Mexican border on a moment's notice.

This was admitted by War Department officials today, following the receipt of a second report from Colonel E. Z. Steever, commanding the American forces at El Paso, Texas, relative to the shooting of Private Baker of the Twenty-second Infantry on Sunday.

The State and War Department made no secret of their fear that a new uprising will sweep over Northern Mexico, making necessary the most stringent measures by the United States to protect property on this side of the line.

News that a big battle is raging in Central Mexico has reached the State Department. It is supposed to be in the vicinity of Tres Marias, and the battle of Torreon, on which will hang the entire fate of the revolution, is expected to be begun not later than Friday.

Make Maloy Charge 2nd Degree Murder

Grand Jury Prefers Graver Accusation Than Manslaughter Against Autoist Who Killed Two.

The Grand Jury today raised the charge in the indictment against John A. Maloy, twenty-seven years old, a chauffeur, from manslaughter to second degree murder. He was refused bail. Maloy was indicted on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of two South Boston men, who were repairing tracks of the Boston Elevated at the corner of Boylston and Dartmouth streets.

His attorney, W. W. Clark, filed a written motion afterwards asking that his client be admitted to bail. District Attorney Pelletier refused to grant this request and the motion will be argued at another date.

Maloy ran down in his auto Thomas Donague, 40 years, of No. 86 Tudor street, South Boston and John Connely, 26 years, of 247 E street, the same district while running his automobile along Boylston street on April 27.

Seek Young Pastor Gone Since Sunday

Shady Rill, Vt., Mystified by Unexplained Absence of Rev. L. B. Grice, Who Went for a Walk.

MONPELIER, Vt., May 7.—The mysterious absence of the Rev. L. B. Grice, the young pastor of the Free Baptist Church at Shady Rill, six miles from here, is causing alarm to the church authorities, who also are investigating today a report a young woman in the town knows where the pastor has gone. Violence or suicide also are suggested.

Mr. Grice is twenty-one years old, and single. He came to the church last August from Spellman, N. C., and devoted himself zealously to his pastoral work. Last Sunday morning the pastor left the house where he boards as though to take a walk before morning service. He seemed cheerful.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock he was seen a mile from this city on the Shady Rill road. He apparently had walked five miles up to that time. He did not appear at the church for services, morning or evening, nor has anyone in Shady Rill seen him since, so far as known. The pastor took no baggage, and probably had less than $5. The church officers are advertising. Reports of suicide are scouted on the ground of no apparent cause.

CLARK IS VICTOR IN MARYLAND

POLITICAL SUMMARY.

Clark sweeps Maryland Democratic primaries.

"I'm not disgraced, then. All I asked was a square deal," says Roosevelt of Maryland result.

Democratic State convention opens in Pennsylvania.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 7.—Speaker Champ Clark swept Maryland in the first direct primaries, securing eighty delegates to the nominating State convention to forty-five for Governor Wilson and four for Governor Harmon. This victory ensures the election to the national convention of sixteen Clark delegates.

Colonel Roosevelt secured sixty-six delegates to sixty-three for President Taft. This ensures a Roosevelt majority in the nominating convention of just one vote. Both Democratic and Republican conventions are entitled to 129 members.

Speaker Clark has a majority so sweeping that Clark delegates will be elected immediately upon the convening of the State convention. The slender majority of Roosevelt and the fact that Taft supporters will organize the Republican State convention forbodes a tumultuous convention for the G. O. P.

Clark Wins Easily.

A fire that was attended by many thrilling features and narrow escapes did damage estimated at $20,000 to the Dagmar Chambers, No. 309 Huntington avenue, today, furnishing excitement for a crowd of 4,000 people of the Back Bay section who watched the firemen battle with the flames.

The suites were tenanted mainly by students from the New England Conservatory of Music, Simmons College, the Normal Art School and theatrical people. The Dagmar Chambers consist of four structures, extending from No. 309 to 315. The fire was confined to No. 309. They are all five-story brick buildings.

In No. 309 there were about thirty tenants, most of whom were out when the

FINAL FIGHT TO SAVE SLAYER ON EVE OF HIS TRIP TO DEATH CHAIR

Miss L. V. Richeson of Saranac, N. Y., the heart-broken sister of Clarence V. T. Richeson, pleaded personally to Governor Foss today in behalf of her condemned brother.

Miss Richeson was in the Governor's presence twenty minutes today. She was accompanied by her personal counsel and by William A. Morse and Philip N. Dunbar of Richeson's counsel.

Following the audience to Miss Richeson Governor Foss said that he will announce tomorrow his decision on the question of presenting to the Executive Council the petition for commutation of Richeson's death sentence to life imprisonment.

At the close of the conference Governor Foss said:

"I will probably not make any decision on the Richeson petition today. It is very likely that I will take decisive action on the matter tomorrow. Miss Richeson conversed with me for several minutes on behalf of her brother Clarence. Mr. Morse, however, did most of the talking. That is all I can say at this time."

Secretary Hamlin of the Executive Council was then called and Governor Foss gave him a message which Mr. Hamlin telephoned to Lieutenant-Governor Luce. This action is regarded as significant of favorable action from the Governor on the Richeson commutation plea. Lieutenant-Governor Luce is the usual presiding officer of the Executive Council at all meetings and hearings on pardon cases and petitions for commutation.

If the case goes to the council tomorrow a hearing will probably be held before that body on Thursday or Friday at the latest. Secretary Hamlin when questioned regarding the decision of Governor Foss declared what transpired between him and the Governor was strictly confidential.

BELIEVE CASE WILL GO TO COUNCIL.

"If Governor Foss refers the matter to the Council," said Secretary Hamlin, "he will have to do so to-morrow because the Lieutenant Governor and Councillor McGregor have made arrangements to start on a trip the latter part of the week and the hearing would have to be held Thursday or Friday."

It is generally believed that the Governor will present the petition to the Council.

One of the dramatic developments today in the fight to save Richeson from the electric chair was the visit of his sister to the Executive Chambers to plead with the Governor.

It was the first time that any member of the Richeson family had ever appeared before Governor Foss in the interests of the former clergyman. Miss Richeson, with counsel, arrived at the State House at 11:50 o'clock. They came in a limousine and were escorted to the Executive chambers and remained waiting in the outer reception room until the Governor was ready to receive them.

Sister is Silent.

Miss Richeson is about thirty-five years old, tall and good looking. Her features and general carriage are similar to those of her brother and she shows traces of that Southern hauteur which characterizes the whole Richeson family. She was attired in a blue tailor-made suit and a straw hat around which was coiled a green veil with flowing ends.

After her interview with the Governor she refused to make any statement to the newspapers. From the State House she went to the Charles street jail to pay a second visit to Richeson and to probably tell him the result of the conference with the Governor.

Miss Richeson first went to the Charles Street Jail at 7:30 today to see her brother. She was too early. The jail was being cleaned. She talked with Sheriff Quinn, then left the jail at 8:45.

Then she called at Mr. Morse's law offices and left there with him for Beacon Hill.

On her arrival in Boston Miss Richeson went to the Bellevue and stayed there a short time. But she did not register. Later in the evening she went to the Parker House, where she secured a room. But it was reported that she was at the Bellevue. As her own name was not on the register, it was assumed that she was registered under some name other than her own.

Meanwhile Miss Richeson, safely ensconsed in the Parker House with the woman companion who accompanied her, was making plans for visiting her brother as early today as possible.

Miss Richeson came out of the main entrance as quickly as possible, stepped into the taxi and was whirled toward the jail. The chaffeur had previously been instructed to avoid, if possible, anyone who might seem to be following the taxi.

The taxi arrived at the Charles street entrance to the jail at 7:30 without interference. Miss Richeson stepped out, walked through the gate of the jail yard without lingering and was admitted to the jail building. The chauffeur was told to wait.

Violet Edmands, former fiancee of Clarence V. T. Richeson, is in New York, and has been there, except for short absences, every day since the 11th of last November.

The mystery of her whereabouts is solved, and her movements given in detail, in a statement made public today by H. Clark Barber, a lawyer, of No. 42 Broadway, New York city, who is a friend of the Edmands family.

Changed Name to "Edwards."

The rumors that have been current, which placed Miss Edmands at Hastings, N. Y., at Philadelphia, in New York State and even abroad, have all been without foundation, according to Mr. Barber. Miss Edmands came direct to his home last November, he declares, and has been there ever since.

Occasionally she has left the house to do settlement work, making her headquarters at the God's Providence House, and giving the name of Violet "Edwards," changing just two letters of her own name.

By so slight a ruse, she has baffled those who sought to locate her, and until within the last few days kept her whereabouts a complete secret.

Mr. Barber made his statement, he declared, for the purpose of stopping the many conflicting rumors as to Miss Edmands' whereabouts. The statement follows:

"Up to the present time not one in a hundred of the rumors about Miss Edmands have had the slightest foundation in truth. For this reason alone, and now that notoriety has again been brought upon innocent heads, it is best that the few simple facts be stated.

"Miss Edmands came to New York about November 18, 1911, in search of some kind of philanthropic occupation. The persons mentioned in the papers had nothing to do with her employment and should not be further annoyed. An opportunity was found at God's Providence House, and on November 20, 1911, Miss Edmands began work. Since that time, excepting two or three periods of two or three days each, Miss Edmands has not left the borough of Manhattan, and has scarcely missed a day at God's Providence House, where she assists generally in the work.

"Never at Hastings."

"Miss Edmands has been doing only what thousands of other men and women are today doing in New York city, and there is absolutely nothing about her work or habits which is in the least unusual. During all this time she has been living in my own family.

"The periodical reports that she was in Hastings, Yonkers, Richmond, Philadelphia, Washington, New Hampshire and abroad were manifestly creations of the imagination.

"Being a volunteer worker, her name did not appear upon the list of employes, and this, coupled with the fact that she was known to many as Mis 'Edwards,' explains the failure of a large number fire started. So swiftly did the flames leap from basement to roof that three or four women were found helpless from fright and had to be led or carried to the street.

THREE-ALARM FIRE IN BACK BAY APARTMENTS

Firemen Cut by Broken Glass.

Several firemen were slightly cut with broken glass. They were driven from their ladders time and time again by the dense smoke that puffed through the building. It took two hours to drown out the flames.

The fire, it was believed, started in the basement. It shot up the dumb waiter shaft, bursting into the rear of each apartment. A tenant called Miss Abbie Healey, the telephone switchboard girl located in No. 313. She called the fire department and then notified the owners of the building and others. She stuck to her post while the fire was being fought two buildings away.

Miss Edith Tremble was aslep in her apartments on the second floor. She was taken out by Emmett Burke, one of the assistant janitors. Burke figured Miss Tremble might be asleep, knowing that she was one of the occupants who did not usually come out till late. He saw the door of her room opened slightly. He found Miss Tremble asleep. Before Miss Tremble really knew what had happened she was picked up, wrapped in bedclothes and was brought to safety in the corridor, while smoke was beginning to fill her room. Then Burke went along to apartments of other tenants.

Word spread about that boys were running through the burning building, looting rooms. But later it was found that all this was due to one boy, an occupant of the place, who became confused and was darting from one corridor to another.

Among those asleep on the fourth floor when the alarms came were Miss May Phillips, Miss Catherine and Miss Anna Crowley, Miss Cornelia Moore, Miss E. A. Dearborn and a Miss Slack. They are conservatory students.

All these were forced to get out rapidly. None had time to dress with any completeness. They fled downstairs in night dresses, robes and whatever garments they could get hold of first.

Many of the fourth floor occupants lost clothing and valuables. Several were frightened and suffered from nervous shock after finding they were safe from the flames.

James W. Kief, the janitor, was on the second floor when the fire started. He went to the basement and found it burning there. He started to fight the fire as best he could with the hose in the basement, but could make no headway against it.

William Champs, who was with Patrolman Ryan when the fire was discovered, helped to arouse tenants to their danger and assist them to the street. One of the women assisted to the street was Mrs. Brown, who lived on the top floor.

"I want to go back," cried Mrs. Brown, "I've left all my money up stairs."

"You can't go now," Policeman Ryan told her. "It would be as much as your life is worth."

Afraid to Go Alone.

Mrs. Umbehime told this story of the starting of the fire and her experience:

"I had gone out for something for breakfast and when I returned I smelled smoke. But I thought it came from the railroad yards across by the old American League baseball grounds.

"The next thing I knew I heard Policeman Ryan shouting through the building. I looked out, and the corridor was filled with smoke. I was afraid to go down alone. A boy who was in the building, whose name I do not know, led me to the street.

"When I reached the street I found that the building was all aflame. I do not know where the fire started, but it seemed to be above my apartment.

Suites 3, 4 and 5 were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Wells with their son Monteigh Wells, and the following young women: Miss Ruth Silva of the Normal Art School; Daisy Shannon of Simmons College; Miss Mollof, Miss Sarah Dearborn, Miss Moore and Miss Catherine Crowley of the New England Conservatory of Music. The second suite was occupied by Mrs. Rowley and the ground floor was unoccupied.

Women Suffer Heavy Loss.

Mrs. Wells and Miss Silva were on the top floor and all the other occupants were away. Mrs. Wells and Miss Silva noticed a little puff of smoke coming from the vicinity of a flue in the rear of a room and then the room filled with smoke.

They had little difficulty in getting out of the room and down the stairs to the street, but could save nothing. Mrs. Wells said: "I was at work in the room when I saw this little puff of smoke and with Miss Silva immediately started for the lower floors. I think the fire started in a flue in the rear of the building, which comes from a boiler plant in the basement, but of this I am not sure.

"I lost $100 in currency and jewels worth $400. My loss will reach to $1,000, with but little insurance, and I think all the girls in the other suites lost as much."

The show girls in the adjoining house suffered only from the excitement and fright incident to their hasty exit. Among them were Lois Yeoman, Opal Flynn, Zoe Brown, Hallie Crouse, Estelle Frasier, Ethel Johnson, Lillian Elliott and Ava Martin.

The fire was a most spectacular one and the firemen used scaling ladders in a daring manner in coping with it. Several of the firemen were slightly cut with broken glass while fighting the flames.

The water tower was brought into use and the men on the roof had to take to scaling ladders several times and come down a floor or two to get away from the blinding smoke that poured out of the windows on both sides of the building from the upper floors.

While two lines of hose were pouring water into the fifth and fourth floors from the rear, the water tower was sending in similar streams from the front. The hot air sucked in the smoke from one side, only to belch it out on the other, and the men were frequently in great danger.

In No. 313 were sixteen members of the Lew Fields' Hanky Panky Company asleep. They were roused and they rushed to the street in great excitement.

Robert J. Culbert, a trustee of the Associated Trust, the owner of the building, which has offices at Nos. 141 Milk street, made this statement about the loss by the fire:

"The cost of putting that building back where it was before the fire, exclusive of furniture, would be $20,000. The fire was confined to No. 309 by an eighteen-inch fire wall. This saved No. 311."

Patrolman David Ryan was at the corner of Massachusetts and Huntington avenues when he caught sight of the smoke puffing from the windows of the building. He sent in an alarm of fire and then sprinted to the building.

Frightened Girls Rescued.

Ryan found the building so filled with smoke that he could hardly make his way up the stairs. But he groped his way to the top floor, pounding on doors and shouting the alarm as he went.

On the top floor the policeman found two girls so frightened that they were unable to get out. The policeman led and carried them to the street.

Mrs. Mabel Umbehime, who was on the third floor, was helped from the building by a boy whose name she did not know. The boy led her through the smoke to the street.

In the meantime the second and third alarms had been rung in and the firemen had thundered up to the building in great force. Ladders were hoisted and great streams of water were poured into the burning building from various directions.

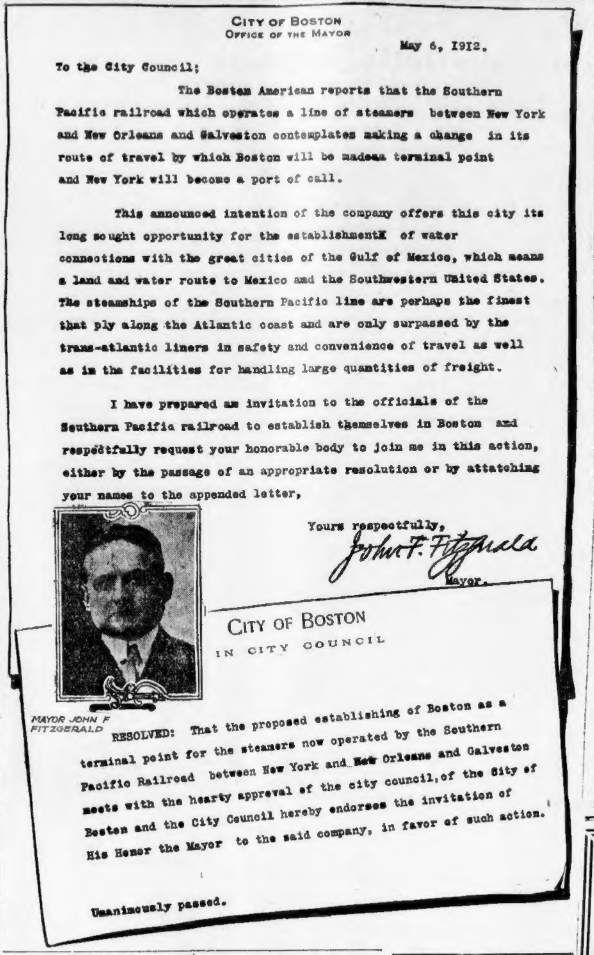
The Dagmar is located almost directly across the avenue from the New England Convervatory of Music. Not far away on the same side of the street as the Dagmar is Hotel Bartol, and just beyond the Dagmar is the Boston Opera House.

One of the pair of horses hauling Water Tower 1 to the fire was thrown heavily and was dragged 100 feet on the Boylston street asphalt, but kept on to the fire after being lifted to his feet.

The heavy tower hitch swung into Boylston street and kept on with increasing speed down the slope from Tremont street to Charles street. This slope is quite a pitch at the corner of Charles street. Just at this point the tower apparatus began to "beat out" the horses, as the drivers say. It rolled faster than the horses galloped and bumped into the horses' hind legs.

Boston Invites Southern Pacific Steamship Line to Come Here

MAYOR'S LETTER TO COUNCIL AND RESOLVE ON SOUTHERN PACIFIC INVITATION.



CITY OF BOSTON
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

May 6, 1912.

To the City Council;

The Bosten American reports that the Southern Pacific railroad which operates a line of steamers between New York and New Orleans and Galveston contemplates making a change in its route of travel by which Boston will be madeas terminal point and New York will become a port of call.

This announced intention of the company offers this city its long sought opportunity for the establishmentX of water connections with the great cities of the Gulf of Mexico, which means a land and water route to Mexico and the Southwestern United States. The steamships of the Southern Pacific line are perhaps the finest that ply along the Atlantic coast and are only surpassed by the trans-atlantic liners in safety and convenience of travel as well as in the facilities for handling large quantities of freight.

I have prepared an invitation to the officials of the Southern Pacific railroad to establish themselves in Boston and respectfully request your honorable body to join me in this action, either by the passage of an appropriate resolution or by attatching your names to the appended letter,

Yours respectfully,
John F. Fitzgerald
Mayor.

MAYOR JOHN F FITZGERALD

CITY OF BOSTON
IN CITY COUNCIL

RESOLVED: That the proposed establishing of Boston as a terminal point for the steamers now operated by the Southern Pacific Railroad between New York and New Orleans and Galveston meets with the hearty approval of the city council, of the City of Besten and the City Council hereby endorses the invitation of
His Hener the Mayor to the said company, in favor of such action.

Unanimously passed.

President William Sproule of the Southern Pacific Company will tomorrow receive a most cordial invitation from Mayor Fitzgerald and the Boston City Council to bring the Galveston line of steamers to Boston.

It is the official recognition of the movement which is expected to advance Boston a distinct point in importance as one of the most prominent ports in the United States.

Mayor Fitzgerald saw exclusively in the Sunday AMERICAN that the Southern Pacific directors were seriously considering making this city the line's northern terminus. A line from Boston to Texas has been one of his pet hobbies. He has for several years been advocating the establishment of an independent line of steamers to Galveston, but has been unable to interest the necessary capital.

The Mayor observed the opportunity to accomplish by encouragement what he had hoped could be accomplished by Boston capital, and this letter was speedily forwarded to the meeting of the Boston City Council:

Mayor Calls on Council.

City of Boston.
Office of the Mayor.
May 6, 1912.

To the City Council:

The Boston AMERICAN reports that the Southern Pacific Railroad, which operates a line of steamers between New York and New Orleans and Galveston, contemplates making a change in its route of travel by which Boston will be made a terminal point and New York will become a port of call.

This announced intention of the company offers this city the long sought opportunity for the establishment of water connections with the great cities of the Gulf of Mexico, which means a land and water route to Mexico and the Southwestern United States. The steamships of the Southern Pacific line are perhaps the finest that ply along the Atlantic coast and are only surpassed by the trans-Atlantic liners in safety and convenience of travel as well as in the facilities for handling large quantities of freight.

I have prepared an invitation to the officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad to establish themselves in Boston and respectfully request your honorable body to join me in this action, either by the passage of an appropriate resolution or by attaching your names to the appended letter.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) JOHN F. FITZGERALD,
Mayor.

Pledges Boston's Aid.

Appended to the order which the Mayor sent to the City Council was the following letter, which has been forwarded to William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific Company, No. 120 Broadway, New York.

Dear sir:

The Boston papers report that the Southern Pacific Railway Company contemplates establishing offices in Boston and making this city the northern terminus for its steamship lines plying now between New York, New Orleans and Galveston.

As your board of directors is doubtless aware, the city of Boston is entering upon what we regard as a new era in port development, which involves the erection of superior facilities for berthing vessels of the deepest draught, as well as the installation of thoroughly modern mechanicism for loading and unloading and the establishment of railroad connections that shall obviate unnecessary delay. An appropriation of $9,000,000 has been made by the Legislature of Massachusetts for this purpose, and a Board of Directors of the Port of Boston has been named by the Governor. The membership of this board is as follows: Hugh Bancroft, chairman; Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, William F. Fitzgerald, Joseph A. Conry and George E. Smith, chairman of the Harbor and Land Commission ex-officio.

I believe that the present freight and passenger business between Boston and New York, as well as between Boston and the gulf ports, would justify the step which you are said to have in contemplation, and that the future developments in this city will expand this business to a volume far beyond the present expectations of the most sanguine observers. We assure you that it is the policy of the officials of this city to make every effort to facilitate intercourse with other ports, and that we shall be most pleased to be afforded an opportunity to exemplify this policy in dealing with the Southern Pacific Railway Company. Any suggestion by you, confirming the published reports and indicating the manner in which we may be of assistance to you in your plans will be most cordially considered.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) JOHN F. FITZGERALD,
Mayor.

TALK ARBITRATION IN FREIGHT STRIKE

CHICAGO, May 7.—Officers of the striking freight handlers today expressed the belief that the differences with the railroads would be adjusted within a few days and the men would return to their places. The strikers are endeavoring to secure a settlement with the general managers of the lines affected, and are considering a proposition for arbitration.

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste-clogged bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

CLEANSES THE HAIR AND MAKES IT FLUFFY, LUSTROUS AND ABUNDANT

Never Any Falling Hair, Itching Scalp or Dandruff If You Use a Little Danderine.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

The very first application cleanses the scalp, stops itchiness, destroys and dissolves every particle of dandruff and prevents the hair from falling out.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recomend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp. Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower; destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

CHURCH PLANS FOR DEDICATION

The complete program was announced today for the dedication of the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston, next Sunday. The blessing will be bestowed by Cardinal O'Connell.

The ceremonies will start with a solemn high mass at 10 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor William P. McQuaide will be the celebrant, assisted by the following: The Rev. L. W. Slattery, Cambridge, deacon; the Rev. Leo F. O'Neil, S. T. L., St. John's Seminary, Brighton, sub-deacon; the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Michael J. Splaine, D. D., master of ceremonies; the Rev. John F. Walsh, S. T. L., St. John's Seminary, Brighton, assistant master of ceremonies; the Rev. M. T. McManus, P. R., Brookline, and the Rev. M. J. Doody, P. R., Cambridgeport, chaplains to the cardinal. The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor P. J. Supple, D. D.

The Rev. J. J. Chittick, Hyde Park, will be the celebrant of the vespers at 7:30, assisted by the Rev. George V. Leahy, S. T. L., St. John's Seminary, Brighton, deacon; and the Rev. Joseph T. Mahaf, Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Roxbury, sub-deacon. The Rev. J. F. Walsh, St. John's Seminary, Brighton, will be the master of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. John J. McCoy, LL. D., St. Ann's Church, Worcester.

The completion of the church adds another magnificent edifice to the diocesan properties.

HOLD PRIMARIES IN MISSISSIPPI TODAY

JACKSON, Miss., May 7.—With the names of Congressman Underwood and Woodrow Wilson on the ballots, a preferential primary was held throughout this State today to determine the choice of the Democratic electors. Owing to general apathy and the fact that planters are very busy at this time, a small vote was expected. Leaders on the Underwood side made confident claims because this is Mr. Underwood's native State, but the Wilson managers were not far behind in their predictions.

1,000 MADE HOMELESS BY TENEMENT FIRE

NEW YORK, May 7.—One thousand persons were driven from their tenement homes early today by a four-alarm fire which destroyed the six-story loft building at 334-336 East Twenty-third street, with a loss estimated at close to a quarter of a million dollars.

Boston Men Selfish, Not Old Maidish

> There are more old bachelors in Boston in proportion to its size than in any other city in the country, and that despite the fact that there are more women here. Doesn't that prove that the men are selfish? They are too selfish to marry.—From statement by Miss Hetty J. Dunaway.

Half Awake, Too, Says Hetty Dunaway

Southern Girl Doesn't Quite Agree with Mrs. Steele's Indictment of Hub, but Sees Room for Improvement.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

"Boston men old maidish! Not at all. They're rather cold propositions and most of them are only about half awake, but when they do wake up they're different, and it isn't sipping tea and talking twaddle either," emphatically declared the pretty Southern girl, Miss Hetty J. Dunaway, when told that Mrs. Jessamy Bret Harte Steele had declared that Boston men were old maidish.

"But they are indifferent propositions. Why, I'm used to having men pay me a compliment occasionally," she said, and smiled demurely, "but the average Boston man would rather take a ducking than pay a compliment. Boston men are perhaps more sincere than the Southern men, or the men of other cities; at least I try to take it that way. Perhaps they only say things when they really feel them, and then again, perhaps they are not impressed by anything. Do you suppose it can be because they're stingy?

"The other evening I went to a reception. I met the dandiest looking fellow, and in my foolish Southern enthusiasm I showed my delight and wanted to shake hands. But, my dear, I fairly had to pull that man's hand out of his pocket. I told him he'd better wake up and he really seemed to appreciate the bit of advice and we became good friends right away.

"The Boston women don't expect enough of their men. If they demanded more attention, they'd get it.

SUGGESTS BOYCOTT PLAN.

"If the girls of Boston would boycott the fellows awhile they'd soon wake up and do better. I have no doubt the Boston men are selfish. They'd rather go with a crowd of fellows where it's a Dutch treat than to spend their money taking the prettiest girl in town around. But when they get together I don't imagine there's anything old maidish about them. But taken as a whole, they are pretty good men.

"The women? Why I think they're all right, too, when you get to know them, but I think all Bostonians need a few lessons in character reading. They should surely be able to judge a person after meeting them a couple of times, but do they? Not at all. You have to lug your family tree, roots and all, around with you every minute and if you don't happen to possess such a thing you might as well prepare for a life of seclusion as far as Bostonians are concerned. They take too much stock in dead ancestors and not enough in the living generation. They're perfectly crazy on the ancestor question. Perhaps it's because they don't have enough other big important things to bother about.

"If they had a little more trust in human nature they'd be happier themselves and make others happier. I don't know, but I think the main fault one can find with Bostonians is their selfishness, which is a result of their narrow-mindedness, or you might just as well put it the other way round. It works both ways.

BOSTON MEN REALLY SINCERE.

"Of course, the Southern men are noted for their chivalry, but perhaps we can even things up by saying the Boston men are more sincere. There are so few of them, too. They really—most of them—look scared to death when they meet a pretty girl, they're so afraid of being captured.

HETTY DUNAWAY, SOUTHERNER.

"There are more old bachelors in Boston in proportion to its size than in any other city in the country, and that, despite the fact that there are more women here. Doesn't that prove that the men are selfish? They're too selfish to marry and then, too, they lack the spirit of venture which we find in most men of all other parts of the world.

"The Boston man won't venture in business, and worst of all, refuses to venture on the sea of matrimony. So what are the poor girls to do? If they were wise and had the money they'd go some place where real, venturesome, red-blooded men grow. I believe with Mrs. Steele that if the Western 'go' were blended with the Eastern culture, we'd have a pretty fine race of people.

"The Boston men are selfish; they're lacking in the spirit of venture and they're an indifferent lot, but believe me they're not old maidish."

CRAZY THOUGHT CRAZE GOT YOU?

Have you got the Crazy Thoughts craze yet?

No?

It's about time you had. Sit down and write out a few Crazy Thoughts and send them to the Crazy Thoughts Editor of the AMERICAN.

Everybody's doing it.

They are all trying to win the $50 in gold the AMERICAN is offering for the best Crazy Thought every week. The Silk Hat Harry Books the AMERICAN is distributing to the other prize winners are worth their weight in gold.

Don't forget, the crazier your crazy thoughts are, the more chance you have of winning one of the Crazy Thought prizes.

Select any crazy subject and write a few crazy lines in a crazy hand and let the Crazy Thoughts Editor see how crazy you can be. Write something on the crazy fads of the day—there is nothing crazier. Set the Crazy Thought Editor crazy with your crazy stuff. He is nearly crazy with crazy thoughts as it is. He never thought there were so many people with such crazy thoughts in the culture-crazed city of Boston.

Just think, the AMERICAN offers 201 crazy prizes every week. Besides the craziest prize of $50 in gold there are fifty crazy prizes of $1 each every week and 150 Silk Hat Harry books for the other crazy winners.

Test the Crazy Cells.

Rack your brains for the crazy cells. Set 'em working. It's great to be crazy. If you don't believe it just read a few of these crazy thoughts that are setting everybody crazy. These were sent into the Crazy Thoughts Editor of the AMERICAN, at No. 5 Winthrop square, where all the Crazy Thoughts should be sent.

It may be all right to have sparks
In the park after dark
BUT
I'm glad it isn't customary
To call the fire department to put 'em out.

What do you think of this one?

It may be all right for the AMERICAN
To run this contest
BUT
I'm glad it isn't customary to arrest
People for their thoughts.

Just another sample Crazy Thought:

It may be all right
To eat onions
BUT
I'm glad it isn't customary to pass
Laws compelling sweethearts to do so.

The Crazy Thoughts Editor has a host of others just like these. Send in your Crazy Thinks, I mean thoughts, as soon as possible. Remember, the Crazy Thoughts are judged every week and prizes are awarded for the craziest ones. Write something with a kick in it.

Get Started Now.

Just another word of instruction. Mail your Crazy Thoughts to the AMERICAN Crazy Thoughts Editor, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston. Write them on the blanks printed in the AMERICAN, or on postcards and get them in early.

Crazy Thoughts will be received up to Thursday for the first week's contest. Those received after Thursday will go on next week.

The winners of the Crazy Thought prizes will be announced every week in the Sunday AMERICAN. Better leave your order now, so as to be sure of a copy.

OPERATORS TO DANCE.

The Malden telephone exchange operators will hold their fifth annual dancing party at Malden Auditorium tonight.

MARY PUTZ OF SAXONY, WANTED THERE AS SLAYER

Mary Putz Will Go to Germany for Trial

Girl Accused of Killing Baby's Grandfather, Waives Extradition Papers.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Protesting her innocence of murder and expressing willingness to sign extradition papers so she can return to Germany, Mary Putz, the twenty-year-old girl who was arrested in Coraopolis, Pa., on Saturday, at the request of Dr. Arthur Mudra, German Consul in this city, was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Edmunds.

She is charged with the murder of Carl Gottlieb Engelhum, an innkeeper in Saxony, the grandfather of her child.

"I am innocent," said the girl. "I did not know that any crime was committed until now. I can say nothing further that will be of any interest."

PREPARES TO MEET BODY OF HUSBAND; FINDS HIM ALIVE

Mrs. William H. Brooks, of No. 4 Fairchild street, Roxbury, received notice that her husband, who was in New York, had been killed by a train. She cleaned up the house, bought mourning and came to the South Station to meet her husband's body.

To her astonishment, her husband appeared in the flesh, accompanied by a lawyer.

The woman was nonplaussed, and became hysterical. Her husband managed, after some minutes, to convince her that he was not dead.

A man named William H. Brooks was killed in New York city last Saturday and his death notice appeared in the papers of that city. Mrs. Brooks was notified that it was her husband and began to make preparations for the bringing home of his body.

2,000 IN DEATH PERIL IN FLOOD

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 7.—In imminent danger of death, more than 2,000 men, women and children are huddled on levees in various parts of the flood swept banks of the lower Mississippi today. Relief boats are being rushed to dozens of different points.

Five thousand persons have been rescued from the path of the Torras crevasse alone. There are 1,500 refugees at Baton Rouge, 1,800 at Natchez, 600 in and around Vicksburg and many thousands of others in various smaller towns along the river.

At Baton Rouge and Natchez refugees are being housed in schools, churches and public buildings. Food is being distributed to more than 30,000 sufferers in Louisiana alone.

Rescuing parties returning from the flood district declare that at least seventy-five lives have been lost and that the death list may go way over the hundred mark.

No new breaks in the levees had been reported up to noon, but from a dozen different points in Louisiana came advices that the situation is highly critical.

A. SHUMAN AGAIN HEAD OF TRUSTEES

A. Shuman, for the twenty-second consecutive time, has been elected president of the Board of Trustees of the Boston City Hospital. He enters upon his new year of efficient service at the head of the twenty-seven years of service as a trustee.

A SAFE EASY WAY TO GAIN FLESH QUICKLY

Amazing Increase in Weight Brought by Physician's Fortunate Discovery.

Medical men, everywhere, have been commenting upon the remarkable experience of a well-known physician, that was recently recorded in a prominent medical publication. By administering a combination of standard, harmless pharmaceutical drugs in a manner he had never used before, Dr. Horace Edwards succeeded in increasing a patient's weight from 114 to 157 pounds in ten weeks—a clear gain of 43 pounds or nearly 4½ lbs. a week. A large number of experiments both by physicians and thin people who desired to put on flesh quickly have followed the publication of this case report, and have brought most remarkable results, indicating that a judicious combination of Fluid Saltogyn, Calisaya and Cardamoms will in practically any case enable a person to gain flesh at the rate of 3 to 5 lbs. a week. The exact prescription used and recommended by Dr. Edwards was 2 oz. Tincture of Cardamoms, 2 oz. Elixir of Calisaya, 2 oz. Fluid Saltogyn and 2 oz. water—all easily obtainable at slight expense from any druggist. Directions: Ask the druggist to mix all the ingredients except the Saltogyn in an 8 oz. bottle and give you the Saltogyn separately. When you get home add half the Saltogyn. After taking three doses pour in the remainder of the Saltogyn and continue taking as before. Dose: Two tablespoonfuls twenty minutes before meals. The resulting increase in weight can easily be checked when the patient desires by merely stopping the treatment. Although, as every physician knows, the above drugs are splendid for relieving indigestion, nervousness, catarrh, etc., they should never be used for these purposes in the combination outlined above except where the patient also wishes to increase in weight.

Tod Sloan to Fight Action for Divorce

Jockey Declares He Does Not Know Woman Julia Sanderson Names, and Will Win.

PARIS, May 7.—Tod Sloan, the jockey, received a mailed summons in the suit of his wife, who is asking a divorce, as he was about to start for the Brussels races. He said that he intends to fight the case and has retained a lawyer in New York, to represent him.

In the papers he has received Sloan's wife, Julia Sanderson, accuses him of friendship with Mabel Robinson on several occasions in the United States and abroad. Sloan declares that he does not know the woman named.

Sloan said that while he had interests abroad he intends to go to the United States to fight the case, which "is one I will win."

SHERMAN SPRINGS OLD ONE TO SEE GAME

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Vice President Sherman sent a page on the Senate floor to ask Senator Pomerene to come up and speak to him. When the Ohioan arrived at the desk, the Vice President looked at him pathetically, and said: "Senator, I called you to ask if you would mind presiding over the Senate this afternoon. My grandmother is very ill." "Indeed! What is her temperature?" "Yesterday it was three to one," responded the Vice-President. Then he stepped down and made a bee line for the bleachers, leaving the Senator holding the bag.

ATHLETIC CARNIVAL FOR STUDENTS' FUND

Baroness Rose Posse is the managing director of the demonstration of gymnastics and athletics at the Boston Arena tomorrow night in aid of the students' loan fund. Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and members of the City Council have been invited. The women's features in gymnastic, fencing and other exhibitions will be in charge of Miss Hope Narey, physical director of the Boston Y. W. C. A.; Miss Mary McGrath of the Brookline Municipal Gymnasium, Dr. E. H. Arnold and others. There will be a basketball game between young women representing the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics and the Posse Gymnasium team of Boston.

LEWIS HARCOURT MAY SOON BE MADE PEER

LIVERPOOL, May 7.—The Liverpool Post prints a rumor that the Right Hon. Lewis Harcourt will shortly be made a peer. Mr. Harcourt in 1899 married Miss Mary Ethel Burns, daughter of Walter H. Burns of New York.

BOSTON BEANS AT SHRINERS' MEETING

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—Imperial Recorder Benjamin Rowell of Aleppo Temple of Shriners has brought a huge trunk full of Boston beans along with him to the convention. His friends say he has fried beans, beans baked, frapped, stuffed and Spanish style, and has even had some special varieties shipped from Africa.

Good Samaritan Host to the Meanest Man

Befriended a Hungry, Homeless Man Who Got His Coat; Arrest Was Made.

Philip Tibbitts of Northampton street is through being the Good Samaritan. He told the judge so in the municipal court today. He also told the judge that last night he entertained the meanest man in the world. He met a man on the Common who said he hadn't eaten anything for three days and that he had no friends. Tibbitts took him home and cooked a dinner for him and himself. While the man was eating it Tibbitts went out to a nearby store to buy a couple of cigars for himself and his guest.

On his return his friend was missing and also a new $50 overcoat and Tibbitts' Sunday suit. Patrolman Lane of the East Dedham street station was detailed on the case and after a couple of hours' work arrested Frank E. Jones. In court today Jones was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction.

HIGHWAYMEN HOLD UP PRINCESS SOPHIA

BRUSSELS, May 7.—Several bandits held up the Princess Sophia of Orleans while she was walking with her governess in Tervueren wood, which is about ten miles from Brussels. The Princess was robbed of her handbag by the bandits and was then ordered to unclasp her brooch and earrings. After doing this she was compelled to hand over the gems. The police are now looking for the highwaymen.

CITY PLANNERS TO BE BOSTON'S GUESTS

Pay $9.00 per Year for the smartest Shoe Styles

GIVEN the required degree of Style, Fit and Finish it is, after all, Wear—length of Wear—that actually determines Shoe Value.

Shoe Style and Finish are today easy enough to find.

But, because of heavy advance in Leather, etc.—this combination, plus a fixed, known, and deliverable period of Long-Wear has grown rare enough to be interesting.

We foresaw that condition,—coming.

So, we invited Chemistry to aid us in toughening, and lengthening the life of, animal fibre.

We sought a means to check the disintegrating action of Oxygen in the Air, upon Leather.

The result amounts to almost a Revolution in Shoe Values.

* * *

We do not ask you to take anything "for granted," concerning this.

Instead, we now offer you a strong Indemnity Bond with every pair of our new 1912 range of "Six-Month" Regal Shoes (at $4.50).

That Bond secures to you (beyond question or equivocation) a fixed term of continuous Shoe-Wear, which term is just about double that of the average fine Shoe sold at $4.00 to $5.00.

It secures to you (in binding legal form) some of the Smartest and Latest Shoe Styles in America, at a cost of only 75 cents per Month—or $9.00 per year—for Shoe Service.

As the average fine Shoe Wears through Outsole, or breaks through Upper, after 3 Months continuous wear that fact means $16.00 per year for average "$4.00 Shoe" Wear.

Contrast that cost, per year, with the $9.00 per year cost of continuous Wear pledged specifically to you, under legal Bond, in the new 1912 range of Regal "Six-Month" Shoes.

Boy Legatee Mourns Suicide

◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆ ◆◆◆

"Mr. Partridge Like Father"

Young Lawyer's Office Boy "Too Sorry" to Think About Will.

"Mr. Partridge was like a father to me. He used to talk to me, give me advice, treat me just like his own son."

This was the tribute paid by William Herbert Mork, office boy for Olcott O. Partridge, to the brilliant young Boston lawyer who killed himself because of ill-health. Mork was surprised when he learned that he had been made a beneficiary in his employer's will.

Willie is seventeen and lives with his widowed mother at No. 11 Lawrence street, South End. He was too ill to go to work and did not find out about Mr. Partridge's tragic death until late.

It was Willie's efficiency and faithfulness to duty that induced Mr. Partridge in his last moments on earth to be solicitous of the welfare of the boy who had become his protege. Just now much Willie Mork will receive under the will cannot be known until the executor has had time to examine the suicide's last testaments. There are several of these in his strong box at the Old Colony Trust Company. But it is expected that the boy will be substantially provided for.

Read News in American.

"I bought an AMERICAN to read the baseball news," said Willie. "The first thing that caught my eye was the headlines about Mr. Partridge shooting himself at his office. I looked to see if it wasn't some other Mr. Partridge, but it wasn't. Then I thought there must be some mistake. I felt like running right down to the Tremont Building to see if the Medical Examiner would let me look at him. Then I noticed it said he named me in his will, but I didn't think about that, I felt so sorry.

"Why, only Saturday afternoon he raised my pay fifty cents a weeks and gave me some advice. He told me I was getting along fine. He said my work was satisfactory, but that I must make myself even more valuable. He said I should study shorthand and that I could act as assistant stenographer. He talked like a father, as he always did. He told me always to be thoughtful of my mother and to study and persevere. He thought I ought to study law.

"He seemed the same as usual when I left Saturday. He couldn't have been planning suicide very long. It must have been awful sudden. Why? Well, because he had made plans with Professor Gilmore of Madison, Wis., to make a long canoe trip with him through Canada this Summer. They were to start about July 26.

Patridge Fond of Water.

"Mr. Patridge was fond of water. He was a good swimmer and liked canoeing. He belonged to the Union Boat Club and rowed a single shell. He made lots of canoe trips in Toronto and elsewhere and used to tell me about them and write, too. He always went with one or two men. I don't think he ever took a woman canoeing. I know he didn't in fact. He seemed awkward when a woman spoke to him, as if he didn't know what to say.

"I work for all the lawyers in the suite, but did more for Mr. Partridge than any of the others. I used to go to the law library with him and help and often I worked until midnight at the office helping him copy briefs. He didn't think anything of working until three or four in the morning. He was smart: I often heard other lawyers say he was about the best writer of briefs in Boston. He was an expert in that line they said.

"I learned a lot under him. He used to coach me and tell me how important different points were. He got poisoned in a swimming tank. First his ear bothered him and then it affected the bone. He had two operations at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore more than a year ago and the doctor's letters assured him he was coming along fine. But Mr. Partridge was awful nervous and worked too hard.

Loved His Work.

"He loved his work. I could see that. He forgot everything else, only canoeing, which he talked about with me a great deal. He talked about his mother and father, too. He said he was the only child. Their home is in Pittsfield, but his father and mother are now in Victoria, Tex., where his father has oil interests, I believe. Mr. Partridge went to New York to see his mother off.

"He used to tell me how his face became partly paralyzed and how he would have to go through a number of exercises every morning for nearly two hours, closing and opening his eye and moving and massaging the muscles of his cheek to keep them active. That worried him. He didn't seem to be downcast Saturday.

"I used to like to please him. The only thing he didn't like was being late. He gave me lectures about that. It wasn't businesslike, he used to say, but he was never cross. He talked to me often about how good I ought to be to mother. Everybody in the building liked him, he was so thoughtful.

"Gee, if I had only been behind him when he pulled that gun, I could have knocked it aside! I can picture him sitting at the desk writing the last letters. Too bad somebody wasn't there to speak to him as he spoke to me. Perhaps he wouldn't have done it, then. If a subject like canoeing or something like that was talked, he'd forget killing himself. No, he wasn't demented. He was just discouraged over his face trouble.

Often Worked Late.

"I see he rode up in the elevator at 10 o'clock Sunday night. Well, nobody would think anything of that, he was so used to working there late. Then he must have arranged things and set and thought for hours, because the medical examiner says he didn't shoot himself until 4:30 Monday morning, and the bullet went through his mouth and brain and into the ceiling. I'm going to give him some flowers. I'm going to do as he wanted. I hope all office boys will, too.

MANY REGULARS DESERT TAFT

George, 5; Washington, 6. Total—66.

FOR TAFT—Anna Aundel, 5; Calvert, 3; Caroline, 4; Carroll, 5; Cecil, 4; Charles, 3; Dorchester, 5; Kent, 3; Harford, 4; Montgomery, 5; Queen Anne, 3; St. Mary, 3; Somerset, 4; Talbot, 4; Wicomico, 4; Worcester, 4. Total—63.

These primaries were the first held under the new presidential preference law. In Baltimore the regular Republican organization, which fought for Taft, met a stunning defeat, and the Democratic city organization a sweeping victory. In both cases the victory was a clean sweep of all four legislative districts, which means a solid delegation from Baltimore city for Clark and Roosevelt.

The total Democratic vote in Baltimore city was 29,302. Clark received 19,277; Wilson 6,578, and Harmon 3,293. There were polled 154 votes for an instructed delegation.

Roosevelt's greatest strength was shown in Baltimore city, his vote being 12,695 to 7,283 for Taft.

Results in Baltimore.

Not a little of the Clark victory in Baltimore was due to the fact that Mayor Preston, who with "Sonny" Mahon, controls the city organization, has the vice-presidential bee buzzing in his bonnet and has made a determined fight for Clark, with whom he expects his name to be coupled.

In one of the districts in Baltimore City, while Colonel Roosevelt got the preference vote, four Taft delegates were elected to the State convention. These are under the law obliged to vote for Roosevelt, but they will give the Taft supporters control in organizing the State convention for the selection of the delegates to the national convention.

Roosevelt's smaller vote for delegate than in the preferential vote is due to the fact that a great many negroes and even some whites voted only in the preferential box and made no attempt to vote for delegates for fear of invalidating their ballots.

The Maryland primary law requires the delegates from the legislative districts to the State convention to vote according to the preferential vote as long as in their conscientious judgment there is any possible chance of this choice obtaining a majority of the votes and as long as this choice is voted for by the legislative delegates of any legislative district.

In the national convention the delegates will vote as a unit for the State's choice as long as in their conscientious judgment there is a chance of this choice being nominated.

In Baltimore, especially, Colonel Roosevelt's fervid bid for the negro vote proved effective, and for the first time in presidential history here, they deserted the organization in great numbers and voted almost to a man for Roosevelt. The Taft men charge that the Rooseveltians were far more abundantly supplied with money, and this, they say, was the effective argument with the colored brother.

On the east side Colonel Roosevelt developed unexpected strength. At the eleventh hour some excitement was caused in the Democratic ranks by a charge that Governor Harmon was being used as a stalking horse for Speaker Clark. On the ballots Mr. Harmon's name appeared among the candidates for the preferential vote, but with no list of delegates. On Sunday morning an advertisement appeared in the papers signed by Charles T. Crane, one of the Harmon leaders, urging voters to mark their ballots for Harmon and the Clark delegates.

The Wilsonites denounced this as a trick to give the Harmon votes to Clark. Monday the managers of the Harmon campaign in an official statement say that Crane spoke only for himself and not for the Harmon bureau. They asked the voters to merely mark the ballot for Harmon.

MRS. KANE TO WED CAPTAIN GILL, AND HER SON WOODBURY

Not One Word About Bolting Will T. R. Say

OYSTER BAY, May 7.—Efforts of various newspapers to get Colonel Roosevelt to comment on the assertion that he would bolt the Republican party if not nominated at Chicago and lead the Progressives with a third ticket, were futile. A reporter of one newspaper, in his eagerness to get an official denial, put this proposition to the ex-President:

"Colonel Roosevelt, I have a ten-dollar bill in my pocket that I will give to any Oyster Bay charity you may name if you will allow me to deny for you the report you will bolt your party and head a third ticket if beaten at Chicago."

Colonel Roosevelt eyed the reporter curiously for a moment. Then he replied:

"My dear man, I am afraid that charity will have to forego the pleasure of your ten dollars."

Attempts by other newspapermen to get a denial from the ex-President failed utterly. Asked if he would admit that he would bolt if the Chicago convention delivered the nomination to Taft with the aid of delegates elected by fraud, the Colonel replied:

"Not a word to say about that. Not a word."

Up to the time of the convention, according to the AMERICAN'S reliable information, Colonel Roosevelt will adopt the same attitude. He has no idea of openly announcing that he will break with his party if the nomination goes to Taft, but as the AMERICAN pointed out the ex-President is ready to bolt the moment the convention, using the delegates contested by the Roosevelt supporters, throws the nomination to Taft.

Mrs. Woodbury Kane to Wed Englishman

Mrs. Woodbury Kane, the widow of Woodbury Kane, formerly Miss Sally Hargous, and who resides at Newport, will shortly marry Captain Gill of the Royal Artillery, according to dispatches from London.

Mrs. Kane has been twice married. She was first the bride of Duncan Elliott, and had two sons, finally obtaining a separation and then a divorce. Later she met Woodbury Kane, who is a descendant of the original John Jacob Astor.

Mr. and Mrs. Kane were married in Aiken, S. C. Kane was of an old Knickerbocker family and one of the Rough Riders. Mrs. Kane was active in Newport society circles and a civic worker of prominence. Before her marriage she was the belle of New York for many seasons.

Her marriage to Captain Kane came as a complete surprise to his friends, but a welcome one, and they had the best wishes of their friends.

BIG ODD FELLOWS' MEETING TONIGHT

Boston chapter of the uniform rank, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Manchester Unity, will entertain the delegates to the annual meeting of the Massachusetts district and other members of the order at Kossuth Hall, No. 1,055 Tremont street, tonight. Addresses are expected from Provincial Grand Master James W. Riley of the Massachusetts district, Grand Master James W. Gregg of the Grand Lodge of the United States and a number of other prominent officials of the order. The thirty-third meeting of the Massachusetts district will open in Covenant Hall, Odd Fellows' Building, No. 515 Tremont street, tomorrow morning.

MISS TAFT ENDS HORSEBACK RIDE TO HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 7.—Helen Taft, who left Washington a week ago yesterday in Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth's riding party, has arrived at Hot Springs with Mrs. Wadsworth, Lieutenant G. R. Radcliffe, U. S. N., Major C. F. Allen, U. S. A., and C. M. Ramsdell of Buffalo.

It was the longest ride ever undertaken by Miss Taft. Both Mrs. Wadsworth and Miss Taft used side saddles and wore brown riding habits. Miss Taft will remain here for the week, not going on with the riders.

Twenty-one miles were covered the first day after leaving Washington, but the party was all one day making the sixteen miles between Rock Alum Springs and Hot Springs.

Driver Who Blocked Rourke Goes to Court

It was an unfortunate thing for Thomas Sullivan, a Boston teamster, that Commissioner Rourke of the Public Works department was in a hurry down Huntington avenue. It resulted in Sullivan landing in the police court. Patrolman Sharkey of the Back Bay police station told Judge Wentworth that Sullivan was driving a big dray down Huntington avenue yesterday afternoon and that he took up so much of the street that Commissioner Rourke was unable to drive his carriage past him. Worst of all, Commissioner Rourke was in a hurry.

Patrolman Sharkey jumped into the street, pulled the offending team out of the way and allowed Commissioner Rourke to pass. He then ordered Sullivan to appear in court today.

Judge Wentworth after hearing the driver's story found him guilty, but placed the case on file.

Richeson's Sister Here to Aid Fight
Calls at Jail to See Condemned Man

Has Long Talk With Sheriff Quinn, Who Says She Is "Heartbroken."

of workers to realize who Miss Edmands was.

"She has found much satisfaction in the work. Whether she will continue in it depends solely upon whether the present uncalled for annoyance to the workers continue."

Several photographs of Richeson, some posed, and others taken when he was unawares, showing the formation of his head, will be a part of the evidence submitted to the Governor's Council, if the question of Richeson's fate is referred to them, it was stated today.

MISS RICHESON LEAVING CHARLES STREET JAIL

Snapshot of Clarence Richeson's sister today as she was leaving the jail, where she went to see her brother now in shadow of death chair.

Photographed in Cell.

The photographs were taken in the prisoner's cell. Many persons who have seen the prisoner's photograph printed in the newspapers have commented upon the peculiar formation of his skull. It is unusually square, with a lofty brow and peculiar ridges extending along the head from above the temples back to the base of the brain case.

When the attorneys for the defence planned their appeal to the Governor, and began to assemble evidence pointing at mental peculiarities on the part of the prisoner, it was suggested that peculiarities in the formation of his cranium might indicate more clearly the cause for this condition.

A phrenologist, a recognized expert, was called into conference with the attorneys, and the taking of the photographs followed. It is understood that a deposition by this expert is one of the exhibits presented to the Governor.

That it is possible that Richeson does not know the grounds upon which his attorneys are pleading for the commutation of his sentence, was suggested by a remark of William A. Morse, the confessed poisoner's attorney. Mr. Morse was asked:

"Does Richeson know that he has been examined and is being observed, as to his sanity?"

Mr. Morse replied:

"Mr. Richeson knows that he has been examined. Further than that I cannot say."

Mr. Morse added that Richeson has apparently settled into a calm attitude of mind and appears now to be waiting without worry, one way or the other, for the decision on his fate. The fact that he has but twelve days to live, if the sentence of the court is to be executed, does not, apparently, disturb him.

"I believe he would accept without protest or sign of disappointment, a refusal to commute his sentence," said Attorney Morse. "He hopes, of course. But the hope has no such hold upon him that to lose it would break his strength. His long hours of thought, alone in his cell, appear to have brought him a certain measure of peace."

Sister Is Here.

If the decree of the court is carried out to the letter, Richeson will be removed Thursday from the Charles Street Jail to the State Prison at Charlestown. But there is some doubt as to the exact date of Richeson's removal.

Attorney Morse will make a strong appeal to Governor Foss to allow Richeson to remain at the County Jail for the present. Sheriff John Quinn, Jr., may decide, in the absence of official notification from the Governor, to remove the prisoner to Charlestown early Thursday morning, or he may decide to postpone the removal until later in the week.

The utmost precaution, however, will attend Richeson's removal, and the hour chosen will undoubtedly be one when few people are astir in the vicinity of the jail or the prison.

What disposition Governor Foss will make of the petition filed with him by Messrs. Morse, Lee and Dunbar in behalf of Richeson, asking for commutation of sentence, will probably be known today or tomorrow. That the Governor is proceeding carefully in the matter is evidenced by his employment of Dr. Lloyd V. Briggs, an alienist, to make a study of the prisoner, following the report of Dr. Lane on Richeson's mental condition at the request of his counsel and following John L. Lee's submitting affidavits of the prevalency of insanity in the Richeson family.

A CARD

Our entire organization labored faithfully and intelligently to produce and present epoch-making values yesterday.

They succeeded. We didn't stint costly space in the Sunday papers to tell you about them.

Plans were conceived and executed on a big, broad, liberal basis.

Lagging goods, all right in every way, were reduced.

Worthy goods, with their original freshness a bit faded, were reduced.

Reliable goods, representing surplusages, left-overs and unsold balances, were reduced.

Seasonable goods, secured from importers and manufacturers at concessions were offered to you at large savings.

Primed with the merchandise you need, fortified with the self-consciousness of work well done, we waited for Monday with the pulse of expectations beating high and strong.

Owing to the rain, nearly all items advertised for Monday will be on sale Tuesday and Wednesday.

Methodists See Way to Let Dancers Dance

It Is Proposed to Re-enact Liquor Paragraph in the Discipline Separately, Then Take Up Rest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 7.—That the "amusement question" is to be settled definitely by the Methodist General Conference in session here, is the belief of the delegates. Not a session has been held in which the question has not been up. Its repeated discussion has brought it strongly to the front, and delegates, laymen and clergy are determined that the problem must be decided.

The plan suggested by Rev. F. M. Larkin, of California, to take the liquor question out of the other paragraphs of the church discipline and enact it into a separate paragraph, is winning favorable comment. Delegates say there is difference of opinion regarding dancing, card playing and theatre attendance, but there is little regarding intoxicating liquors.

OFFER REWARD IN BIBBER MURDER

LEWISTON, Me., May 7.—The investigation of the death of John W. Bibber took a new impetus today, following the offer of $100 reward by the Board of Aldermen. The lodge of Elks, of which Bibber was a member, will also probably offer a reward, and may seek to bring members of the Burns' Detective Agency to this city.

F. W. Adams of the Pinkerton force is in Portland shadowing a subject. The police have narrowed the hunt down to two men whom they seek to locate.

Evidence, which the police believe would show most conclusively that John Bibber was murdered by a man with a light overcoat, has been discovered. Charles H. Thompson and his thirteen-year-old son David saw a man with a light overcoat walking through their yard fifteen minutes before Bibber was shot. Mr. Thompson, who is employed in the Androscoggin Mills, lives only a stone's throw from the Eaton home, where Bibber lived.

"David and I had been to a moving picture show," said Mr. Thompson. "We reached the house shortly after 9:30 o'clock. Just as we were about to enter the house, David turned to me and said, 'Look, Pa, what is that man doing in our yard?' I turned and saw a man only a few feet away coming through our yard from the direction of Frye street.

"He weighed about 160 pounds, was five feet and seven or eight inches tall and had a derby on his head.

"He wore a long light overcoat, which came nearly to his knees. His hands were in his pockets, and as he left my yard he turned in the direction of Mr. Bibber's house. I did not think much of it at the time, but when I learned that a man wearing a light coat was suspected of the murder I thought he was the man."

Cooke's Suicide Talk Doesn't Bother Wife

"How Does He Know God Has Forgiven Him?" She Asks Regarding Preacher Who Eloped.

HARTFORD, May 7—"How does he know that? Who do you suppose told him?" inquired Mrs. Marinda Clark Cooke when she was shown an interview, in which her renegade husband, the unfrocked Rev. Jere Knode Cooke, complained that, as God had forgiven him his sin in eloping with Miss Florence Whaley, mankind should not press retribution and penance on him.

Cooke's intimation that suicide might be the best solution for him did not strike his deserted wife very seriously, for she replied that her decision concerning the divorce feature would not be altered or hastened, "not in the slightest."

However, both she and her uncle, Attorney Sidney E. Clarke, her legal adviser, keep carefully guarded the secret reason why divorce proceedings may not be considered just yet.

"Probably—at least my many friends tell me so—I am the most innocent and the most injured party in this awful affair," said Mrs. Cooke.

"You say suicide is threatened? That would only be making a bad matter worse. The first great shock of the crime has worn away, but the injury still exists and is progressive. You say God has forgiven him because he has confessed. How do you suppose he is sure of that, and who told him so?"

JORDAN MARSH AID ASSOCIATION BALL

The sixth annual dancing party of the Jordan Marsh Company Mutual Aid Association was held at Paul Revere Hall last night. Despite the inclement weather, no less than 1,200 persons visited the hall during the evening. Among the special guests were the members of the firm and their wives, including Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mitton and Mrs. D. D. Williams. Superintendent and Mrs. W. A. Hawkins were also guests. The association has paid out in benefits during its six and one-half years of existence $38,000. The following officers of the association comprised the general committee: George E. Richards, president; Walter N. London, vice-president; William J. Corbett, treasurer; George E. Carroll, financial secretary; William H. Olsen, corresponding secretary, and others.

MRS. GRACE TO BE MOTHER SOON

ATLANTA, Ga., May 7.—Mrs. Daisy Grace, formerly Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie of Philadelphia, indicted by the Fulton County Grand Jury on the charge of attempting to murder her husband, Eugene Grace, while he was asleep in bed at their home in Atlanta on the night of March 5 last, expects to become a mother soon, it became known today. Her husband does not know of her condition.

Mrs. Grace was told the news of her indictment five minutes after the jury's action. She received the news with apparent joy.

"I'm glad of it; I'm glad of it; I'm so glad," she repeated. Her next question was about her husband.

"Did they bring out anything about Mr. Grace's condition?" she asked.

Mrs. Grace expressed her hope of an early trial. She has been impatient for some definite action by the Grand Jury, and is eager for an early trial.

Mrs. Grace's bond will be made as soon as the amount is assessed by the officials. This was announced by Attorney J. A. Branch when he was told of his client's indictment.

"The offence charged is bailable and we will make the necessary security when the amount is fixed," he said. "We desire as early a trial as possible," he added, "and will endeavor to have it set before June 1."

The Graces had been married about a year when Grace was shot. She was the widow of Webster Opie of Philadelphia, who left a comfortable fortune. It developed that Mrs. Opie and Grace were intimate before Opie's death, and their marriage followed soon after. Mrs. Opie and Grace traveled to New York from Philadelphia and then to Hot Springs, Ark., before they were married.

BOSTON 'POPS' OPEN TO A MERRY THRONG

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

It did not seem much like Summer, but there was the big electric sign, "The Pops," on top of Symphony Hall, and inside the multitude of chairs and tables that replace the pew-like rows of seats when the calendar says that May has come.

"The Pops" are a queer institution to exist in this placid and extremely conventional city. How they ever got started away back a quarter of a century ago, and how they have continued to exist through the numerous spasms of Puritanism that the city has experienced, is something of a mystery.

But here they are, and how popular they are getting to be! There was hardly a vacant seat last night, either on the floor or in the balconies, and it is safe to say there will never be a night during the next eight weeks when there won't be a large and enjoyable audience on hand. The audience is really part of the show. It is nearly as enjoyable to watch it as it is to listen to the sober-sided Symphony men grinding out waltzes and comic opera selections.

Pretty Girls There.

All the pretty girls in Boston get taken to the Pops during the season, and if you think that Boston is not well fixed with pretty girls go to the Pops and learn to appreciate your city.

Another interesting feature of the Pops is the corps of waiters. They are always the same waiters. Some of them have been there for twenty years. How they earn their living during the part of the year when there are no Pops is another mystery. Maybe they hibernate with the squirrels.

They move about in time to the music. They wait until a fortissimo to pull a cork, and they set down their trays in perfect tempo.

Society was there. With the naked eye one couldn't distinguish society from you or me, but a society reporter with a pencil nearly fell over the balcony railing trying to see what Mrs. John L. Gardner had on.

Of course there was music. That is the why and wherefore of the Pops. You go to hear a concert and you are allowed to buy drinks and refreshments to sustain you till the end. If they were not allowed to purchase in this manner many prominent people would not go to the Pops. In this insiduous manner they are tricked into listening to three hours of semi-classical music, and the next thing you know they are buying season tickets for the Symphony orchestra.

Music Proves Treat.

Gustav Strube is the conductor. Mr. Strube is a year older than he was last year and he has composed several new pieces that we will undoubtedly hear before the season is over. He still leads in a downright and determined manner, and he remembers how to make delightful programs.

To me the most interesting feature of the program was the first performance in Boston of an intermezzo from Wolf Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna," an opera that was sung by the Chicago Opera Company last season.

It is a fantastic and fetching little piece, full of quaint and pretty themes treated in a charming and highly original manner. It is music that is truly worth while, and it is a pity that Chicago instead of Boston has heard the whole opera. There was also a serenade by Strube, likewise a dainty trifle, and the usual conglomeration of selections from grand operas and such things. Played by this orchestra of fifty-five members of the Symphony, this music was a great treat.

SOCIETY THRONGS TO POPS IN LATEST SPRING RAIMENT

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Of all the sure signs of Spring, the opening of the season of Pops is the surest, and for the twenty-seventh time the "first night" was made memorable by the glitter and radiance of a fashionably gowned audience enjoying fine music, sipping delicious drinks and munching the inevitable pretsel—everybody seemingly without a care in the world.

The latest in Spring gowns and millinery had their first airing, and so gay were both that the floor of the house, from the balcony, looked for all the world like a tropical flower garden. Gayety reigned supreme—as did true Bohemian. The swish, swish of the handsome gowns, the clink of the glasses, the pop-pop and the fizzing made a deliciously inspiring interlude—especially to the lover of "Pops."

There were hats of every known color, shape and size—flower trimmed, feather trimmed and tailored—even the derby had its day—or rather night. There were some, to whom "Pops" was a new venture, who came hatless, but they were so few that they looked as odd as they must have felt.

Some wore decollete gowns, some gowns with high collars and some the dainty shirt waist and tailored suit. In one thing they were all agreed, and that was the jolly good time they were having.

Greetings were flashed from table to table and visiting back and forth was the order of the intermissions.

Many Merry Parties.

For the most part society—what there was of it—arrived late, and the rest of the audience was there early to await and witness their coming.

Among the jolliest parties was that which included Miss Ella Lyman, radiantly lovely in old rose, with large white hat trimmed with white espreys; Miss Alice Thorndike, in peacock blue satin and hat of the same shade trimmed with black plumes, and Miss Faith Simpkins in black satin and large black hat trimmed with red roses. They are all strikingly handsome girls and made a distinctly interesting group.

Among the recent brides attracting much attention was young Mrs. Lodge, who was most becomingly gowned in brown satin and large brown hat trimmed with plumes.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., entertained an interesting party, including her youthful sister-in-law, who was one of the most prominent buds of the season and who was strikingly pretty in a simple creation of blue and white chiffon and a blue hat trimmed with white wings. Mrs. Wendell, who is one of the handsomest women of the younger matron set, was in black and white striped chiffon and small black hat trimmed with white plumes.

Miss May Loring, who is to be a bride of the early Summer, was with a happy party of young friends and who was looking her loveliest in a gown of delft blue and a large white hat trimmed with white plumes.

Many Handsome Gowns.

Among the late arrivals was pretty Rosamond Dixey, whose becoming gown of cerese satin was almost completely concealed by her long cloak of light tan.

Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, who has recently closed her town house and gone to her country estate at North Easton for the Spring, entertained a number of friends and was looking especially well in a gown of black lace and a large black hat.

Mrs. Andrew Weeks Anthony was another interesting young bride present. She came rather late with her husband and several friends, including her sister-in-law, Miss Ruth Anthony and her sister, Miss Colt of Providence. Mrs. Anthony was in a tailored suit of dark blue cloth with close-fitting hat of the same color, trimmed with white, and Miss Anthony wore a tailored suit of brown and small brown hat.

Mrs. Guy Lowell, who entertained several friends, wore a tailored suit of black and a small black hat. Included in her party were her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. Robeson Sargent, whose tailored suit was also of black and her hat a large black one trimmed with black.

AFRICAN VIRTUOSO WENT PADEREWSKI SEVENTEEN BETTER

LONDON, May 7.—In connection with Paderewski's resolve never to visit South Africa again, it is recalled that during his recent tour the pianist was the subject of the following open letter, published in the Pretoria News:

"What have you done for the world? What do you do? You play the piano. I am told that you play the piano better than any other living pianist. I am not prepared to dispute that, but, after all, what is there in playing the piano? We had a man here the other day who could not only play the piano, but seventeen other instruments, including the jewsharp. Nobody made a fuss about him. It cost only two shillings to hear him play all his instruments; he did not have the Mayor to receive hem, nor did he charge a guinea ($5) for his front seats."

FRANKLIN SQ. GIRLS GIVE MINSTREL SHOW

A minstrel show was given in Hayne's Hall by several young women residents of the Franklin Square House, assisted by several young men, the proceeds of which will be used in making repairs. The show will be repeated tonight. The first part of the program was the usual minstrel front. The second part included a one-act play, under the direction of Walter I. Cowlishaw. Miss A. Bertha McLean was interlocutor, and the ends were Miss Cynthia Childs, Miss May Simpson, Miss Grayce Shelborn, Miss Anna Cowlin, E. Thomas Williams, Carl E. Jones, Miss Mabel H. Clarke, Miss Leila Smith, Miss Agnes Burlingame, Miss Ellen B. Christianson.

OPEN IDEAL HOMES EXHIBIT THURSDAY

The second annual Ideal Homes Exposition will open in Mechanics building on Thursday evening. The show this year will be on a much larger scale than that held in Horticultural Hall last year, and many interesting and novel exhibits have been arranged that will show the progress of the last few years in home building. Special entertainment is to be provided for children.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Ike's party, which relinquished possession of Camp Margedal, near Melville Village, on Lake Winnipesaukee, yesterday, did so with no regrets for the time spent there. The outing had been a particularly enjoyable one and the program had been of such exceptional merit as to satisfy even the most fastidious and capricious of guests.

Ike furnished every convenience, every necessity and every pleasure that could be desired, this even including fresh water bathing within ten days after the ice went out of the lake.

The Form Club, which formed quite a large portion of the delegation, entertained and in turn was entertained in such a manner that the event will be long remembered. Ike Campbell, the host, did himself proud.

Paul Smith, sales-manager of the automobile department of the Studebaker Corporation, has resigned; and in this connection comes the additional announcement from an authoritative source to the effect that he and some associates have purchased a large interest in the Metzger Motor Car Company, makers of the Everett cars, fours and sixes, and that Paul Smith will hereafter direct the sales of that product. The title of first vice-president will also be conferred on him.

No other man in the automobile industry enjoys a greater acquaintance and popularity than Smith. He is said to be the youngest, "highest salaried and most underpaid" sales manager in the industry. It is stated that he knows every dealer in the United States by his first name, and he is "Paul" to all of them, whether allies or competitors.

In the automobile business, as in other lines, but perhaps more so, the matters of personality and personal contact count. And the factor that has contributed largely to the success and popularity of Paul Smith has been his "red blood" way of handling men. His plan has been to surround himself with young, clean, energetic men and keep them close to him while he trains them in the intricacies of the business. He pays liberal salaries and watches for opportunities to promote those who make good.

PUT COLOR IN CHEEKS AND LIPS

Experience of a Sufferer from Thin Blood Who Thought She Could Not Live.

The fact that one woman is bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked, strong and cheerful, while another is pale, weak and depressed is due more often than otherwise to the condition of the blood. The way to remedy this condition is to build up the blood and for this purpose there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are for both men and women but they benefit the latter in a special way.

Mrs. Eva L. Richardson, of No. 32 Adams Street, Laconia, N. H., says: "My health began to fail and for four years I was sick. The doctors said I was suffering from anæmia. I was so pale and white that my flesh was almost transparent. I was very thin but my limbs and face were bloated. There was not a particle of color in my lips. I suffered from palpitation of the heart and could not go up and down stairs without stopping two or three times and holding on the banisters for support. I had such terrible headaches that it was impossible for me to exert myself the least bit. My sleep was broken by smothering spells and in the day time I had dizzy spells. The doctor prescribed game for me but I could eat very little. I could not even eat eggs. My mother read in a paper about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and of the good they were doing and, knowing that I could not live on as I was, thought there would be no harm in trying them. We were all surprised at the result. I soon began to have color in my cheeks and lips and felt much stronger. I continued using the pills until I was as well as ever. My health has been good ever since and I can heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed by the manufacturers to contain no opiate, narcotic or anything that could injure the most delicate system.

A booklet, "Building Up the Blood," showing what these pills have accomplished in anæmia, rheumatism, general debility and after-effects of fevers will be sent free on request.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Miss Bateman Will Use Wealth for Others

◆ ◆ ◆

Friends Tell About Her Unselfish Nature

Mrs. Howe's Daughter Wishes Heiress Long Life to Enjoy Fortune.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 7.—Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, daughter of the late Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, today wished Miss Dorothy Bateman a long life in which to enjoy the $500,000 left to her by Ross R. Winans of Baltimore.

"I hope," said Mrs. Elliott, "that Miss Bateman will live long in order to get all the benefit she can out of the money."

Then Mrs. Elliott added:

"I also trust Miss Bateman will be thoughtful enough to try to do some good with the money outside of her own home."

Those who know Dorothy Bateman say that is just what she will do—use her wealth to make others happy. Meanwhile she is pursuing her round of household duties. She seems more interested in the chickens, cows, horses and calves at home, and particularly in her pet cat and dog, than in the prospect of great luxury.

She is embarrassed every time she goes shopping down Thames street by the attention she attracts. When the word spreads that the half-million-dollar heiress is coming there is a frank rush to see her. Some of her old acquaintances stare at her as though she were an entirely different girl.

Miss Bateman's father said today:

"One thing is certain. For the present we are going on just as we have always done, which means work, work, work and dig, dig, dig. No doubt, as you can imagine, we have some ideas on hand as to what we might do were we in actual possession of the money at this moment, but we are not."

"Will you replace the house (Bateman's Inn) with a big, modern house or hotel?"

"Don't think so. But we might fix the old place up in pretty nice shape."

"Will you go abroad?"

"Well, not right away. Want to get used to the situation first. From comparative poverty to real riches is a big jump, don't forget that. And, until the money is in our possession we have no plans out of the usual."

Though Ross R. Winans was known in Newport as an "odd stick" Dorothy Bateman found him neither disagreeable nor cranky. The sunshine of the girl's presence warmed the heart of the lonesome, sick millionaire. During his last illness in Baltimore she wrote to him often. It is said she mailed a letter to him daily, writing all the kindly, cheerful things she could. Many packages of flowers were sent, too. Miss Bateman knew just what kind of blossoms Winans liked, and paid careful attention to his tastes.

Every letter Dorothy Bateman mailed to Winans received prompt answer. Winans usually had a special delivery stamp put on, too, to insure haste and safety.

Last Christmas there was an exchange of presents. Winans sent flowers which got frozen through no fault of his. Miss Bateman dispatched a minature Christmas tree by express with some tiny variegated electric lamps attached so the tree might be set up in the sick man's bedroom. There was also a present from each member of the Bateman family.

FORMER MELROSE OFFICIALS SCORED FOR SCHOOL WORK

Former Melrose city officials are criticized by the special committee investigating the erection of two wings to the Melrose High School at a cost of above $78,000. Ex-Mayor Eugene H. Moore, ex-inspector of Buildings Allan H. Sim, ex-Alderman S. S. Porter, ex-Superintendent of Public Works George O. W. Servis and Architect Tristram Griffin are criticized by the committee. Of the committee of investigation signing the report, Chairman Arthur L. Whalen, Rev. Frederick H. Knight and Peter J. Lynch are members of the Board of Aldermen, while William T. Faby and William Coggeshall retired from the board last December. The committee finds that the city did not get the building that it contracted for, that the roof is weakened and that one wall of the building is bulging already. Many defects are pointed out.

BIG SUMMER HOTEL IN WISCONSIN BURNS

WAUKESHA, Wis., May 7.—Rest Haven, a big sanitarium and summer hotel near this city burned to-day. The hotel had 1,000 rooms and cost $300,000. Help was called from Milwaukee. The fire started from crossed wires. All the guests escaped.

Eczema Cured in 10 to 30 Days—The Paris Medicine Co., 2624 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., manufacturers of Laxative Bromo Quinine, have a new and wonderful discovery, GROVE'S SA-NARE CUTIS, which they guarantee to cure any case of ECZEMA, no matter of how long standing, in 10 to 30 days, and will refund money if it fails. GROVE'S SA-NARE CUTIS is perfectly clean and does not stain. If your druggist hasn't it, send us 50c. in stamps and it will be sent by mail.

CONSIDER JUDGE ARCHBALD CASE IN SECRET SESSION

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Behind locked doors, with even the committee clerk excluded, the House Judiciary Committee today began the investigation of impeachment charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the Commerce Court. Summary action by the committee is generally predicted. A decision is expected within ten days or two weeks.

That Judge Archbald's impeachment will be recommended is the opinion freely expressed in the House.

Girl-Widow Cannot Queen It Socially There, for Place is Vincent's Now.

ASTOR WILL PROVISIONS.

To Vincent Astor—Total bequests estimated at $60,000,000. All lands and property at Rhinebeck, N. Y. House and grounds at Newport, R. I., and all personal property.

To Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor—Trust fund of $5,000,000, which she loses if she marries. New York town house. Outright legacy $100,000.

To Ava Alice Muriel Astor—Trust fund of $5,000,000.

To posthumous children—Trust fund of $3,000,000.

To relatives, charity and friends—Total, $276,500.

To first wife, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor—Nothing.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The social ambitions of Madeleine Force Astor are shattered by the will of her husband, Colonel millionaire who perished aboard the Titanic, the beautiful young bride would have been the acknowledged queen of the two great country estates, Rhinecliff-on-the-Hudson and Beechwood, at Newport, and especially Beechwood.

Now all that is changed. Mrs. Astor cannot reign in the Newport palace, for it belongs to William Vincent Astor, like the Hudson River estate. She is left a legacy outright of $100,000, and the income from a trust fund of $5,000,000—provided she does not marry again. Marriage means the loss of her fortune, and the widow is scarcely more than a girl.

The next mistress of Beechwood will be the bride of Vincent Astor, whoever that may be. That the bride of last September has lost all claim on this social mecca at the famous Summer resort of New York's Four Hundred, is made clear in the provisions of the will. Until the death of her husband, social prestige which such a residence at Newport can give seemed assured to the former Miss Force.

The way was paved immediately after the wedding, by Mrs. Ogden Mills, who graciously received the attractive young bride as "Mrs. Jack Astor." And during the Fall season Mrs. Force Astor spent much time at beautiful Beechwood. Her mother and sister were frequent visitors there. Now, that is over.

Curiosity is expressed by friends of the young man concerning his immediate plans. The suggestion was advanced that Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, his mother, may preside over both homes while he remains single. Mr. Astor is not expected to wed soon. He will not reach legal age until November. His friends ask, "Why should his beautiful mother, with a social prestige unquestioned abroad as well as in America, live at a hotel when her son owns two of the largest and handsomest country places in the United States?

The will was drawn in this city in September last, only a few days after his marriage to Miss Force and approximately seven months before he perished with the sinking of the Titanic.

Nothing as to the value of the great estate is given, and by the creation of trust funds, the testator has followed, as far as possible, the customs of his forebears in keeping the vast Astor real estate holdings intact.

BENEFICIARIES OF THE WILL OF JOHN JACOB ASTOR

Valuations of the estate run anywhere from $75,000,000 to $150,000,000. A close friend of the family said today that in his opinion the smaller figure was nearer the correct estimate.

Aside from the provisions for Vincent Astor, the will provides for unconditional bequests of only $276,500. Among these there is but one of a charitable nature. This is $30,000 to St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H. The remainder of legacies are to relatives, friends and faithful servants.

Nearly all the other provisions of the will, as made public, deal with the trust funds, of which there are three: $5,000,000 for the young widow, $5,000,000 for the colonel's young daughter Muriel, the child of his former wife, Ava Willing Astor, and $3,000,000 for the expected posthumous child of the present widow.

The widow receives $100,000 outright, and until the income from the trust fund shall become available the trustees are directed to pay her an income of $20,000 a year. There was an anti-nuptial settlement which she accepted in lieu of dower rights. The amount of this has never been made public. Report has placed it at $5,000,000.

TITANIC VICTIM WAS ON WAY TO QUINCY

Henry Kvillar of Germany, a Titanic victim, whose body was recovered by the steamship Min'a, was bound for Quincy, where he had secured employment at the Fore River shipyards as a marine architect, according to an investigation conducted by Chief Burrell of the Quincy police. Harry Adelburg, a draughtsman at the Fore River shipyards, told the police today that he had received a letter from Kvillar stating that he was on the way to the United States. Adelburg's address was found on Kvillar's clothing.

LAW INADEQUATE IN MARIANO CASE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 7.—Judge Stearns in the Superior Court today dismissed the motion of Attorney-General Rice to increase the $20,000 bail in which the District Court held Antonio Mariano on a charge of manslaughter for the killing of his schoolmate, thirteen-year-old William Mathers. The court declared that it had no jurisdiction to increase bail fixed by the District Court. Judge Stearns deplored the lapse in the statutes that permits a time to exist where no court has jurisdiction over a defendant out on bail.

Uncle Sam Uses 1842 Burroughs

There is something significant in the use of 1842 Burroughs Adding machines by the United States government.

Uncle Sam is wise. He buys a few of every kind of machine just to see which is the best for his work. But he uses more Burroughs by many times than of all other machines combined.

Let us show you a Burroughs, right in your office. No cost or obligation.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, May 7.—Midday: The Boston market was rather dull at the opening with coppers weak and reflecting depression in New York. During the first hour there were fractional declines in Butte Superior, Amalgamated, Isle Royale, North Lake, Tamarack and Copper Range, but Indiana and Utah Copper each sold higher.

The latest from Houghton regarding the Hancock strike is a dispatch saying the shaft continues in fair vein rock with good copper showing, but that there is so much dirt to be removed that no careful examination will be possible until afternoon.

Among the industrials in the local market, American Telephone & Telegraph was a little lower in the morning.

A Chicago dispatch says that United States District Attorney Wilkerson will soon file a bill there asking for dissolution of the Beef Trust at the instance of Attorney-General Wickersham, and that this action is to be the government's alternative, following failure of criminal proceedings brought against the members of the packing combine.

Another dispatch from there says it is reported that if the National Packing Company will formulate a disintegration plan satisfactory to the Attorney-General, dissolution proceedings will not be brought by the government.

New York Market Opens Weak.

The New York market had about as weak a tone at the opening as prevailed at the closing yesterday. Steel, Reading, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Amalgamated were all lower. But Canadian Pacific sold higher.

After a few minutes the market rallied and Reading began to advance. Union Pacific made gains, as did American Smelting. By the end of the first hour Atchison and Lehigh Valley were also selling higher, but Steel and Amalgamated continued weak.

In the London market sentiment regarding American issues, with the exception of Steel, was rather cheerful and they ruled above parity. Canadian Pacific continued buoyant.

Rio Tinto at 75¾ was ⅜ lower.

Copper Buying Still Small.

There is very little demand for copper metal at present and many of the largest consumers in the country are keeping out of the market, although it is understood they will soon be in need of supplies. So far as can be understood they are hopeful that the report of the Copper Producers' Association is going to be to their advantage as regards prices. They want lower priced copper. Sales under 16 cents a pound recently have been for such small quantities that the total of such transactions is of no importance.

The big selling agencies are very well informed as to the copper producing situation, and the firm stand they have taken against making concessions of consequence is something which consumers who hope for a break ought to consider. One agency is quoted by Thompson, Towle & Co. as saying:

"We are holding copper at 16½c. per pound and have refused 16c. for the metal within the past few days. The metal is in a strong position, and from investigations we have made, the manufacturers are not stocked with copper and are carrying no more of the metal than they did when copper was selling at 12c. per pound, although their business is large in volume. In other words, their buying has been only for their immediate requirements. The recent easing off in the market may be attributed to some small sales of secondary copper which have been made, some at 16c. and some slightly below this price. We doubt if there is any quantity of the metal to be had at anything under this figure. Another of the large selling agencies have stated that they would not shade their copper below 16½ c., and as far as we know they are adhering to this figure.

"Judging from our books, American consumption has been good during the past month, and we are inclined to believe that the Copper Producers' statement will be about a standoff; that is, it may be either one way or the other, showing a small increase or decrease."

A several large producer of copper tells us: "We are holding the metal firmly at 16c. and are not breaking that price. The sales which were made at a concession from this figure were due to a certain amount of metal finding its way into speculators' hands. The market is quiet at the present time, with little buying going on compared with the large transactions which took place a few months ago. We look for a slight increase in stocks in April, probably 5,000,000 pounds, which we believe will represent a healthy condition. Considerable copper is tied up at Baltimore, which has been sold for European account, but not yet delivered owing to a strike of the stevedores, and this figure will show in the April Producers' Statement."

The exportation through the New York Custom House for the first four days of May was 5,931,520 pounds. There have been no foreign shipments from Baltimore since April 26, owing to a dock strike at that port. Only 8,731,520 pounds were exported from there in the whole of April. This was almost a fifty per cent decrease when compared with January figures.

The April production of the Greene Cananea Company amounted to 4,600,000 pounds, which, at the cost of 9½ cents a pound, would indicate net profits of $300,000 for that month. Earnings for last year were, it is said, $1,260,000, or 48 cents per share. The average price received by the company in 1911 was only 12½ cents a pound.

Old Dominion output for April was 2,167,000 pounds of blister copper, a decrease of 368,000 compared with the same month a year ago. The March last production totaled 2,432,000 pounds.

President John D. Ryan of the Amalgamated Company said, when he got back in New York, that he was very much impressed by what has been accomplished by the Utah Copper Company.

Unfilled Steel Tonnage.

The latest estimate of what the United States Steel Corporation's report of unfilled tonnage for the month of April came in a New York dispatch this morning and says:

"The statement is expected to show an increase of about 225,000 tons. The Corporation ran its mills at about 93 per cent. full capacity throughout the month and production was in the neighborhood of 1,075,000 tons of finished steel. Orders are estimated to have been at the rate of about 50,000 tons daily. An increase of 225,000 tons would bring the corporation's unfilled bookings to about 5,560,000 tons, or sufficient to keep the mills running at the present rate of output until the end of the year's third quarter. At the same period as this last year the unfilled tonnage was 3,218,704 tons.

No confirmation has been received of the report from Pittsburg that some small steel companies are seeking more business by making price concessions. The larger concerns are reported to be 'rigidly maintaining their prices excepting for shading to obtain particularly desirable orders, but nothing that could be called a decided cut has been announced.'"

Financial News in Brief.

President Samuel P. Colt of the United States Rubber Company urges stockholders to increase its capitalization, which is now $75,000,000. He tells them the business of the corporation has outgrown that amount, and that still greater expansion may be looked for. The profits of United State Rubber last year were $5,376,306, as against $4,549,825 for 1910.

There is now an abundance of cheap electric power in the vicinity of Butte and there is talk in Montana that the St. Paul road may electrify 250 miles of its line.

According to preliminary reports the April figures of the Hill roads will show an increase in gross of more than $500,000.

There is expectation that the common dividend of the American Beet Sugar Company will be increased to a 6 per cent. annual rate before the end of 1912. For the fiscal year, which ended with March, earnings available for common dividends were equivalent to $13.50 a share, a gain of $2.60 per share over the previous year.

The Chesapeake & Ohio road will soon begin the construction of a new $1,000,000 coal pier at Newport News, Va. It will be 1,200 feet long and have a dumping capacity of 3,000 tons an hour.

The May Department Stores Company has declared a 1¼ per cent. quarterly dividend on its common stock, putting it on an annual 5 per cent basis. The previous rate was 4 per cent.

RACING TITANIC COULDN'T DODGE

LONDON, May 7.—Testimony to show the Titanic was making such speed when warned an iceberg lay dead ahead that her course could not be changed was given when the British government's inquiry into the sea tragedy was resumed in the London Scottish Drill Hall today. It was the first session since last Friday, the wreck commissioners utilizing the interim to inspect the liner Olympic, sister ship of the Titanic.

Robert Hichens, quartermaster of the Titanic, was the first witness. It was he who gave the testimony relative to the speed of the ship.

"Captain Smith was in his cabin at the time of the accident," Hichens testified.

The witness was questioned by Lord Mersey, presiding judge, and by counsel for the Board of Trade and the White Star line.

"Did you hear the three bells warning from the lookout in the crow's nest that something was ahead?" he was asked.

"Yes, I heard the warning."

"How long after the warning was the order given to port the helm?"

"About half a minute."

"A telephone message came from the crow's nest that an iceberg lay in the ship's path," Hichens explained. "An order was immediately sent to the engine room. Up to the time of the three bells of warning, there had been no change in the vessel's speed."

"SPRING MAID" AT TREMONT

More refreshing than the famed waters of Carlsbad is the dainty and delightful little opera, "The Spring Maid," which came back to this city last night and entertained a large audience at the Tremont. Boston heard the opera two years ago, but it made such a short stay in comparison to its long run in New York that it got away before the real merit of the production had been discovered. But Boston knows all about "The Spring Maid" now, and during its stay here it is assured of liberal and enthusiastic patronage.

The music is distinctive and of a high quality—the kind that improves with age. The book and lyrics are immensely funny. The cast is headed by Miss Christie MacDonald, one of the greatest favorites of the Boston theatregoing public. She is a charming singer, a graceful dancer and a comedienne of rare gifts. The music is suited to her voice—in fact, the selection of the cast for this production shows a master mind in judgment.

Prince Aladar, leading man, has a strong part, unusually well played, by Thomas Conkey. His voice is one of the best heard for a long time in Boston in light opera. Tom McNaughton, as the famous English comedian, was funny without descending to that buffoonery that jars the kind of audience that patronizes the Tremont.

The concert work was especially fine. In "The Spring Maid" the chorus singers were apparently selected not only because they looked well on the stage, but because they can sing.

Taking it all in all, it would be hard to find a more wholesome performance on any stage than that which was given last night at the Tremont. The audience manifested their approval in such a way that many of the numbers were encored until the singers were almost exhausted.

CASTLE SQUARE BILL, 'SEVEN DAYS,' SCORES HEAVILY

A delighted audience left the Castle Square Theatre after seeing "Seven Days," a farce in three acts, produced by the John Craig Stock Company. It was the first time that this play was ever acted in this city by a stock company, and it scored heavily.

It was a continual roar of laughter from the time Al Roberts, who took the part of the burglar, came upon the stage until the final scene. There was not a dull moment during the three acts.

Mary Young, as Kit McNair, was pleasing. John Craig, as Tom Harbison, portrayed his part in capable style, while Donald Meek, as Dallas Wilson, Miss Mabel Colcord as Aunt Selina, deserve credit for their excellent work. Al Roberts as the burglar, George Hassell as James Wilson, who was getting "in wrong" all the time, and Miss Mabel Montgomery as Ann Brown kept the playgoers in good spirits.

BOSTON'S NEWEST THEATRE, OLYMPIA, PLEASES AUDIENCE

Boston's newest theatre, the Olympia, on Washington street, opposite Boylston street, has opened with a well selected bill of performers. Seven acts are to be seen and all are cleverly produced. The headliners are Moore and Scatia. Their refined comedy was enjoyed by the audience.

A musical act presented by the Four Marimba Senenaders was received with much applause. Many operatic selections were played on the xylophone. A hit was scored by McGowan and Cahill in their clever sketch. The Fujiama Opera Company easily won the good graces of the audience. A juggling and barrel tossing act was presented by the Yokohama Japs. All dancing honors must be awarded to Bruce Morgan and his three Piccadilly Johnnies.

WARD AND CURRAN HEAD EXCEPTIONAL BILL AT NATIONAL

Full of their old time humor, and with their act "The Terrible Judge" revised, but still retaining it original comedy, Ward and Curran are furnishing the patrons of the National Theatre with a laughable entertainment this week. Johnny Johnson with his parody on the "Poet and Peasant" overture; Lewis and Chapin; the Woolf Players, in a comedy "A Prima Donna's Honeymoon;" Manning and Ford in a dancing act; the Three Romans in a Roman statuary act and Georgia and Ellmina, jugglers, complete an exceptionally fine bill.

Dr. Raymond is a graduate of Tufts, a member of the American Medical Association and Hampton County Medical Association. Miss Cruttenden was graduated from the Women's Medical College, Baltimore.

Big Triumph for Lindsay Morison

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

SCENE FROM "SPRING MAID"; LINDSAY MORISON

Ann Tasker, Christie MacDonald and Thomas Conkey in "The Spring Maid," at the Tremont.

Lindsay Morison, whose new stock company began its Summer season at the Majestic.

Lindsay Morison and the weather were not on speaking terms last evening. Possibly Mr. Morison believed that with fair skies his new company at the Majestic Theatre might have acted better. It must have been that, for from all inward appearances at the theatre the weather had not kept anybody at home.

The loyalty of Mr. Morison's first night audience was almost as good to look upon as the play itself, which in this case happened to be "The Witching Hour," and which has triumphed over unfriendly weather before.

Of the performance many nice things may be said, but it will pass into history chiefly as the biggest floral success of the season. Flowers poured over the footlights like water from a faucet—there seemed to be no end of them. And when the stage was completely covered, Mr. Morison stumbled through the improvised garden to make his speech. He said he was bewildered and speechless, and proved it by talking smoothly for twenty minutes, pausing long enough between two sentences to wave a friendly hand to the Mayor of Lynn, who had journeyed hither to join in the festivities.

In spite of the weather it was a large night for both Mr. Morison and his company. The audience was out for speeches and it got them.

Fortunately, the best part of "The Witching Hour" had passed before the social festivities began. Otherwise there might have been no performance, for no group of players could go through that reception after the third act and expect to stick to their lines for more than another fifteen minutes.

In beginning his Summer season at the Majestic with "The Witching Hour" Mr. Morison appears to have started at the top of the list with plays. Which should remind you that "The Witching Hour" is not the ordinary kind of play given at stock prices. It offers playing obstacles that might easily frighten a more timid manager. While conceding that the play is not suited to the limitations of even the best of companies, it must be admitted that Mr. Morison's players held to their task with determination and satisfied everybody who paid money at the gate.

Although "The Witching Hour" had never been presented here in stock before, its former engagement at the same theatre, with John Mason as star, is still recent enough to arouse keen interest in the Morison production. Easily the most distinguishing mark of last evening's performance was the Justice Prentice of Wryley Birch, who had no difficulty in making his personality felt in every corner of the house. He caught the spirit of the character and held it through the evening—even in face of the shower of roses and other fragrant things that broke in upon the play.

Several New Faces.

There were several new faces in Mr. Morison's company, and from the early indications they will manage to hold public interest. Henry Mortimer proved a straightforward leading man, but seemed a trifle too youthful for the seasoned Brookfield. Anna Cleveland, who is expected to become as popular at the Majestic this Spring and Summer as she has been during the Winter in Mr. Morison's Lynn company, made an agreeable impression. Another stranger was Florence Brian, who did the fluffy ingenue in a series of smart gowns.

After all, it was not so much of a performance of "The Witching Hour" as a reunion of Lindsay Morison and his friends. The merits of the play were lost in the general felicitations that were passed around so loosely.

Mr. Morison may congratulate himself upon the loyalty of his patrons.

They stuck to the finish.

Comique Theatre.

It was established yesterday at the Comique that Sarah Bernhardt is just as big an attraction in moving pictures as when she appears in person. The new pictures, just released, showing Bernhardt in "Camille" proved a bigger hit that the management of the house could have possibly hoped for, though there has been no complaint on that score. The films were found to be perfect specimens of motion photography, with Bernhardt revealed in her best acting mood. The pictures will remain at the Comique for one week.

Orpheum Theatre.

Charles Wildish and his company made themselves agreeable to the audience at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday in a sketch called "The Poolroom." It was a lively novelty. Other acts on the bill were the LaVelles, eccentric dancers; the Creighton Sisters, who sang lustily, and a half dozen additional features.

Gaiety Theatre.

There is more than the usual amount of serious matter in "The Ginger Girls," which began a week's engagement at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. Burlesque does not frequently produce genuine melodramatic moments, but in "The Futurity Winner," the opening skit at the Gaiety, you have all the thrills of a race track romance and a near approach to tragedy. "The Ginger Girls," perhaps better than any other show on the road, shows the improvement that has lifted burlesque from ordinary to intelligent entertainment. Of course, there were girls who conducted themselves in proper musical comedy style and there were comedians to keep your spirits from drooping.

Globe Theatre.

There were polar bears at the Globe Theatre yesterday, and they did things that no one would have supposed possible. Abel's troupe of bears formed the centre of a long program of vaudeville novelties and the entertainment was surprisingly good. Other features were supplied by the Elite Singing Three, which it is easy to understand is a group of musical folk; Magee and Kerry, in a sketch called "In a Department Store," and the Grotesque Randolphs, who made things merry. There were new motion pictures.

Hub Theatre.

The Nine Ginger Kids were at the top of the new vaudeville bill at the Hub Theatre yesterday. There was also a display of new motion pictures.

Scenic Temple.

Besides several new vaudeville specialties and a long list of motion pictures, the program at the Scenic Temple yesterday was enlivened with a concert program by Lenna Howe's orchestra.

Waldron's Casino.

"The World of Pleasure" was the burlesque offering at Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday. It was well supplied with the usual burlesque equipment of girls.

South End Theatre.

"The Two Orphans" was revived at Loew's South End Theatre yesterday and pleased two large audiences. The new stock company appeared very much at home in this interesting old drama and will doubtless enjoy a happy week. Miss Evesson as Henrietta and Miss Valentine as Louise, made the performance attractive by sincere and intelligent acting.

Premier Theatre.

An innovation in motion pictures was shown at the Premier Theatre yesterday when Mme. Rejane, the most famous of French comediennes, was exhibited on the screen in "Mme. Sans-Gene," the play that has brought her success on two continents. The Rejane films have just been released and the belief of the Premier management that they would enjoy popularity was justified at the Premier yesterday.

Plays That Remain.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" remains at the Plymouth, where it is still attracting large audiences. It is the best melodrama of the season.

"Hanky Panky," with its wealth of novelties suited to the tired business man, began a new week at the Shubert last evening.

Frances Starr continues at the Hollis in "The Case of Becky." Miss Starr has the unusual role of a girl with a dual personality.

Julian Eltinge, whose efforts in "The Fascinating Widow" are drawing crowds to the Boston Theatre, began a new week last evening.

"The Siren," with its pretty girls and delightful musical numbers, is now on its final week at the Colonial Theatre.

MME. KALICH HAS STRONG SKETCH ON BILL AT KEITH'S

A sudden plunge from the gayest of gay comedy into the depths of tragedy of the most tragic type was what was given the audience at Keith's. "A Light From St. Agnes," in which Arthur Hopkins presents Mme. Bertha Kalich, was certainly a soul-gripping tragedy. Mme. Kalich, as Toinette, played the part of the depraved woman who in the last act is made to see life differently and who even betrays her sweetheart through the realization of the love of a dead woman who in life had tried to save her.

John Harrington as Michael Kerouac, the man whom she loved, played the part of the villain so impressively that he was hated by all, and John Booth made Father Bertrand an interesting character. The sketch was decidedly dramatic and Mme. Kalich had ample opportunity to show her cleverness as a tragedienne.

Charles Mack & Company in "Come Back to Erin," displayed true Irish wit and humor and just the proper amount of pathos mixed in the lines to make it palatable. Mr. Mack played the part of Larry Dillion, an Irish American; W. P. Kitts, Kerragan, one of the old sort; Mrs. Charles Peters, Mrs. Burke an Irish mother, and Miss Etta Bastedo, Shaleh, a colleen. Mr. Mack's playing of the bag pipes and Miss Etta Bastedo's Irish breakdown were features.

"A Raw Recruit," in which Hawthorne and Burt appeared kept everybody in the height of merriment.

Linden Beckwith, known as the magnetic mistress of melody, won favor at her first appearance here.

Mme. Alasa Techow's performing cats made a hit with the kiddies and every grown person was almost as much interested. Lola Merrill and Frank Otto in "After the Showers" brought laughs galore. Pero and Wilson, comedy pantomimists; the Holworths, clever English entertainers, in their singing, dancing and banjo specialties, and Rice, Sully and Scott, in the comedy trampolite act were other interesting numbers.

Howard Athenaeum.

The Old Howard Burlesquers began their second week at the Howard yesterday, and from all indications the two audiences found them diverting. There were also several vaudeville novelties.

WIFE 'TO MEET' DYING HUSBAND

NEW YORK, May 7.—Captain Bradley Sillick Osbon, veteran of the United States Navy, hero of fights on all the Seven Seas, honored in the Civil War by the paraise of Farragut, and in the Spanish war by the commendations of his government, died yesterday in the Post Graduate Hospital. And, dying, this remarkable old man—"sailor of fortune," as he called himself—received the strangest and the proudest laurel of his storied life from the brave woman who has shared his fortunes for more than forty years.

"You are not going to leave me now? the dying man said as he held weakly the hand of his wife in the final hour.

"You are leaving me," she answered, with gentle solemnity.

"When shall we meet again?" murmured the dying man.

"Two weeks from today I will meet you in Heaven," she replied.

If the words of the strange conversation had not been repeated by the wife herself, they would have been hardly believable. But Mrs. Osbon recounted the entire story of the deathbed scene in her little apartment, No. 132 East Twenty-third street.

She was asked, as gently as possible, what she meant by her final words to her dying husband. But she broke into tears and did not reply. Then she said in reply to other questions:

"My husband died because he was in want of food and medicine. He was ill and I nursed him for three months here before I was told by a friend that if I did not take him to a hospital I would take him to his grave. Then I took him to the hospital."

He had a pension of $20 a month.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Quinn and Gallagher, lively vaudeville specialists, headed the new bill at the Bowdoin yesterday.

"IF IT'S AT MORSE'S, IT'S CORRECT
IF IT'S CORRECT, IT'S AT MORSE'S".

The chief essential in successful clothes making is honest value for the price. No matter what the price, if the proper ratio of fit, fabric, fashioning and needlework is maintained—that is bound to be a satisfactory service. Each garment made in our splendid factories is built on the honest value plan.

DORR FIGHTS WITH GUARDS

STOCKTON, Cal., May 7.—William A. Dorr, charged with the murder of George Marsh, the Lynn, Mass., soap manufacturer, is on his way East. He resisted being carried from the taxicab in which he was taken from his cell to the train last night, and when boarding the train attempted to block one of the officers accompanying him to Lynn.

The train left Stockton last night at 10:10 over the Southern Pacific, with Dorr in charge of Inspectors Burckes and Lane of Lynn, Mass. He is also accompanied by a nurse, Miss May Thomas of the Emergency Hospital.

Dorr is a nervous wreck. For a few days he took a brace and appeared normal, but as the time drew near when he must return to Lynn and stand trial, he lost all control of himself and went to pieces. Sunday night he went into hysterics, moaned, wept, frothed at the mouth and shrieked for them to have mercy on him. Today he was somewhat better, but his manner yas like that of a man coming out of delirium tremens.

Since the arrival of the Lynn inspectors he has been confined at the Emergency Hospital. The doctors think his condition is aggravated by the fact that the first man to die there was James Marsh, brother of the murdered man, with whom Dorr's aunt, Miss Orphea Marsh, lived a number of years.

Shortly after the Emergency Hospital was opened, six years ago, James Marsh was stricken with heart trouble on the street and was rushed there, where he died a few hours later.

50 GO ON STRIKE IN A LOWELL MILL

LOWELL, May 7.—Fifty operatives of the Merrimac Manufacturing Company, went out on a strike today, claiming that Agent Jude C. Wadleigh has not kept a promise to give them time and a quarter for overtime. They say they are compelled to work during the noon hour and receive no extra pay for it. This mill was involved in the recent strike. Agent Wadleigh says the men refused to work at all during the noon hour, although the company gave them twenty minutes for lunch.

Dr. Demopoulos, leader of the Greek operatives, is urging his countrymen to join the I. W. W., which he first opposed. He says the mill owners are not keeping their promises. The I. W. W. will hold a mass meeting tonight.

DR. ESTABROOKS'
"ALVEOLAR" SYSTEM
MAKES
ARTIFICIAL TEETH UNNECESSARY

Dr. Estabrooks' "Alveolar" system is the newest and most pleasingly effective method of replacing lost teeth without the use of sets or plates or the old style crowns or bridges. It is a blessing for people who have strong objections to wearing an artificial set of teeth.

When your lost teeth are replaced by Dr. Estabrooks' "Alveolar" system they have not the slightest appearance of artificiality. Since the "Alveolar" teeth are not made on a plate there are, of course, no false looking gums showing, as there must be when a set of teeth is used.

People who are thinking of having a set of teeth made or having crown or bridgework done should at least call to see Dr. Estabrooks and have him explain the "Alveolar" system. It costs no more than old style dental work and is much better and more natural. Let the Doctor tell you how much it would cost to fix up your mouth in the most approved manner. No charge for consultation or advice.

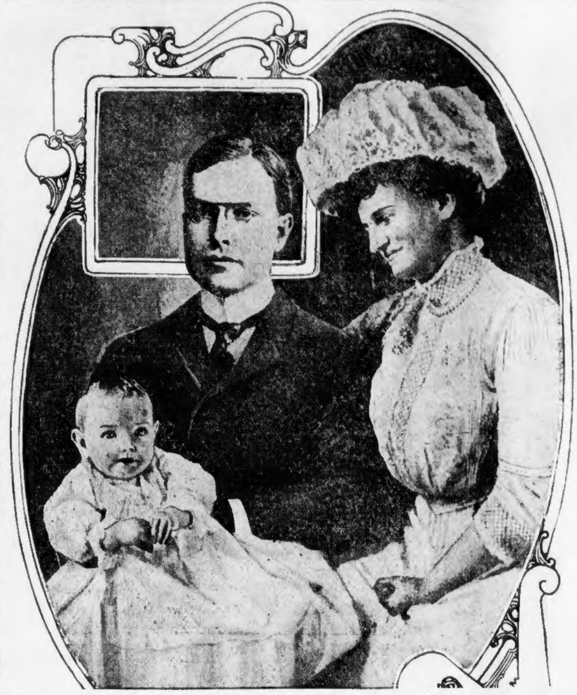
Newest Rockefeller Baby Worth $40,000,000

When He Is 21 He Will Inherit $60,000,000

MR. AND MRS. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., AND ONE "WORLD'S RICHEST BABY"



Photograph was taken a few months after the first of the Rockefeller babies was born. This baby, their first born, was christened John D. Rockefeller II. The second baby was named John D. III., and now friends of the family are naturally predicting that the latest heir to millions will bear the name of John D. Rockefeller IV.

CONSUELO TO BE A COSTER MAID

LONDON, May 7.—The Duchess of Marlborough, who was was Consuelo Vanderbilt, has a new idea. Her grace's latest appears to have met with considerable criticism among the more conservative women of the peerage, although it has the approval of Queen Alexandra. The Duchess, dressed as a cockney maid, fresh from the region of Covent Garden, intends to sell flowers in the streets of London.

On June 26, arrayed in a shawl of strange hues, a white apron, a straw sailor hat and other items of the costume of the true coster girl, her grace will sally forth from her Mayfair palace, attempt to evade the photographers who are sure to be in attendance and will make "raid" on the Stock Exchange. It is needless to tell any one who has the slightest acquaintance with the American woman, that all this will be done in the cause of charity.

Yet despite the laudable end the critics of the duchess declare she has gone too far. The idea of a real wearer of the strawberry leaves selling flowers in the streets of London, and running the risk of being mobbed is too much for the British "bluebloods."

RUSH MORE POLICE TO END COAL RIOTS

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 7.—Half of the crack Troop B of the State constabulary left here today under rush orders for Shamokin and vicinity to reinforce the troopers there to quell rioting, which started yesterday and went on all day in the vicinity of Shenandoah and Mount Carmel. Following conferences by Governor Tener, Superintendent Groome of the constabulary and coal officials, it was decided to concentrate all the troopers possible together without leaving other centres of activity unguarded. It was determined today to appeal to the Governor to call out the State militia if the State police are unable to control the situation. The I. W. W., which led the Lawrence, Mass., strike, are trying to wrest control from the mine workers' union.

WOMEN'S COMPANY JOINS MEXICO CITY ARMY OF DEFENCE

MEXICO CITY, May 7.—Squad 11, Company K, composed of sixteen resolute women, is the latest addition to the American army of defence in the Mexican capital. The women have armed themselves with fight if American citizens living in Mexico Krag-Jorgenson rifles and have sworn to City are attacked. All the women are single. The squad was formed by Victor Calver, formerly an officer in the United States Army in the Philippines. Most of the women have served as nurses in the Spanish-American war or in strikes of fever camps, and all are inured to hardships. Each woman has been supplied with 500 rounds of ammunition, and they practice every afternoon. They range in age from twenty to thirty-five years.

A New Face Without Surgical Skin Peeling

"I do not approve of the surgical operation of face peeling," says Julia Orr. "It's too radical, too often dangerous. There's a better way of removing offensive complexions and one that is entirely safe and rational. Ordinary mercolized wax causes the devitalized scarf skin to come off, but gradually and gently. Unlike the surgical process, the skin is not forcibly taken off in big pieces all at once, but almost invisible flaky particles are absorbed by the wax and from ten days to two weeks are required to complete the transformation. There's no pain, no discomfort.

"Nature renews complexions the same way, shedding tiny cutaneous scales day by day. But deficient circulation, or other abnormal condition, may interfere with the shedding—a 'bad complexion' results. Then mercolized wax assists Nature by hastening the removal of the aged, faded or discolored top skin. Thus only the lively, young, healthy-hued skin is in evidence, as in robust girlhood. This is why mercolized wax produces the indescribable beauty of ever-renewing youth. The wax is put on at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. You can procure it at any druggist's; an ounce is sufficient."

GAIN OF $3.54 PER PUPIL IN COST OF GRAMMAR SCHOOLS

The cost of educating each pupil in the elementary schools in the city of Boston has increased $3.54 per pupil over that of three years ago, while the cost per pupil of the high schools has decreased $2.98. The city pays out $34.11 for the elementary pupils and $78.84 for the high school pupils, according to the report of William T. Keough, business agent for the School Committee.

GRAY HAIR

Easy to Restore Natural Color of Your Hair by Simple Method

Science has just been finding out some of the most amazing things about the hair—discoveries that overturn many old ideas.

For instance, with a newly discovered product the natural color is restored by a simple treatment that can be applied by any one in a short time. This scientific treatment is embodied in the Queen Gray Hair Restorer, a liquid preparation that makes any desired shade from the one package, leaving the hair soft and fluffy, and making a lasting color that is not sticky and does not rub off.

The Queen Gray Hair Restorer is harmless in its effect and requires but one application to restore the natural color of your hair. It is in two sizes, 50c and $1.00, and can be obtained from Houghton & Dutton and Riker-Jaynes Drug Co. and the leading drug and department stores throughout the country.

The best hairdressers use it and sell it to their patrons.

CUPID BUSY WITH SENIOR CLASS OF EMERSON COLLEGE

Thirteen engagements announced and many more suspected, is the record of the senior class of Emerson, which held class day exercises at Huntington Hall. Not only has Cupid been busy, but Miss A. Anne Ball, the class historian, let it slip that every graduate has not one, but four cook books in her possession.

The class beauty, Miss Janet Elizabeth Rae, is also called the most domestic girl in the class; there is only one suffragist—Miss Isabel M. Roop; and there is an "ardent anti"—Miss Harriett C. Palmer, lined up against her. The source of the cook books is a joke, but their purpose is unquestioned.

Three Boys Now Among Four Children In Home of John D., Jr.

The arrival of another son in the family of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at their home at Pocantico Hills, N. Y., has brought great joy to former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Providence. The mother of the new and one of the richest babies in the world is the daughter of Senator Aldrich.

Not only is Grandfather Aldrich overjoyed, but so is Grandfather John D. Rockefeller. This is the third son and the fourth child of young Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller. The two other boys are called John D. II. and John D. III. Presumably the youngest of the family will be named John D. IV.

There are four other grandchildren besides those of John D., Jr., but there will be enough money to go around, as the Rockefeller wealth was estimated a few years ago at $800,000,000, and it has not decreased any in spite of the millions given away by the head of the house.

By the time the newest Rockefeller baby is twenty-one, he will inherit considerably more than $40,000,000, in all probability. The present income of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is $60,000,000 a year, according to the estimate once authoritatively made by the late H. H. Rogers.

Mrs. Harold McCormick of Chicago, who was Miss Edith Rockefeller, is the mother of two children, and Mrs. E. Parmelee Prentice is the mother of another child. Mr. Rockefeller's eldest daughter, Bessie, who married Charles Strong and who died several years ago, was survived by a daughter, Margaret, who is the oldest of the Rockefeller grandchildren.

Young Mrs. Rockefeller was Miss Abby Greene Aldrich. She became the wife of John D., Jr., eleven years ago.

HALF-CENT PIECE TO HELP CONSUMER WITH LIVING COST

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The House, by passing the Bulkly bill, providing for the coinage of one-half cent pieces and three cent pieces, is believed to have helped in lowering the cost of living. Some of the advantages of the one-half cent piece are:

Some kinds of meats are listed at 12½ cents a pound, but if one takes one pound one pays 13 cents.

In other lines—dry goods (by the yard), groceries (by the pound) or green groceries (by the measure)—the price often is 12½ cents or "two for a quarter."

If one does not wish two for a quarter, having no need for the two, whether they be pounds, pints or other measurements, the customer pays the additional half cent. With the half-cent piece the purchaser would be able to meet the exact price asked.

TIGER'S CLAW AFTER RED SOX

The Red Sox arrived in town last night, and they were a disappointed band of ball tossers. Rain butted in on their plans yesterday and upset what they had counted on as another victory for them.

The Highlanders have not been hard ones for the Stahl crew to down this season, so with Joe Wood twirling, the game was already counted as good as won. And then Jup Pluv showed his hand and the Red Sox beat it for home.

Today the Sox will begin a long home series at Fenway Park. All the Western clubs will be entertained during the next few weeks before Stahl takes his bunch on the road again.

The first of the visitors to show themselves are the old time foes of the local tribe, Hughey Jennings's gang from Jungletown. The battles between these two teams have always been memorable ones. The presence of Cobb, Crawford, Bush and Donovan, in the lineup, with the inimitable Hughey on the sidelines, in his grass-pulling stunt, is always the source of much pleasure to the local fans.

Manager Stahl, despite the fact that he is still limping about on a cane and cannot get into the game, plans to have his charges get a good start against the Western clubs by turning the Detroit club down good and hard.

Joe Wood, who was to pitch against the Highlanders yesterday in New York will undoubtedly start the series today. If the Kansas City boy does not do the flinging it will be because Charley Hall will be Stahl's choice.

Hennigan May Have To Quit All Running

James Hennigan of Malden, the New England champion ten mile runner, who ran in the modified Marathon race in New York on Saturday, is confined to his bed in Malden by illness caused by overexertion in the race and may be out of the running for all time. Up to the tenth mile Saturday he ran an excellent race and was close behind Scott, the winner.

After passing the tenth mile Hennigan was seized with violent pains in the stomach and gradually fell behind, but his great pluck kept him in the race. He refused all proffered assistance, and although suffering great pain, he finished the race in twenty-fifth place.

BURCHELL CAN BUY RELEASE FOR $750

CINCINNATI, May 7.—The National Baseball Commission dismissed a request by the Montreal club of the International League to set aside a ruling by the National Board directing that the name of player F. D. Burchell be stricken from its reserve list on payment to it by him of $750. Montreal asked that the amount be raised to $1,500.

Burchell desires to play with and manage the Syracuse club of the New York State League.

PILGRIMS NEED TODAY'S GAME

CHICAGO, May 7.—Determined to keep in the running, the Boston Pilgrims will redouble their efforts today to take a fall out of the Cubs, and incidentally rebuke them for the trimming they handed out yesterday.

The Pilgrims are certainly a much better looking band of ball tossers than that which represented the Hub in the National League last year. They play with a great deal more life and energy, and impress the fans with their desire to win.

Despite the fact that they were on the losing end yesterday, they did not look at all bad, as a losing club generally is made to appear. They kept right after the game, even though their twirlers were going bad. Tyler, who started, didn't show much and was quickly derricked before the first round was over. The hole he put his teammates in was a difficult one for them to endeavor to crawl out of.

JOHNNY HAYES ON HIS WAY TO ROME

BERLIN, May 7.—Johnny Hayes, the American Marathon runner, has left Berlin for Rome, where a big race is to be run with Dorando at the height of the Roman season. From there he will travel back to Vienna and Budapest and perhaps to St. Petersburg. He will wind up his tour at Stockholm in time to see the Olympic games.

TWO DRAW BOUTS AT NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, May 7.—Two good draws were fought tonight at the New Bedford A. A. Benny Kaufman of Philadelphia and Young Dyson of Providence went fifteen rounds, while Kid McDonald of Boston and Harry Lenny of Baltimore fought eight fast rounds.

GERMANY WILL SEND TWENTY TO OLYMPIC

BERLIN, May 7.—The German tryouts for the Olympic games will take place this month. It is expected that about twenty men will make the trip to Stockholm.

LOWELL CLUB IS OUT FOR FLAG

A stirring pennant race is expected in the New England League this season. The different clubs have displayed good form in the few games already played and the fight for the flag is sure to be close.

Lowell is now in first place. The Spindle City Club won the championship last year, and with several stars in its lineup is confident that it will again finish at the top of the ladder. Bill Cooney reported to the Lowell management a few days ago, and his presence in the infield has greatly strengthened the team. Cooney is the best fielding shortstop in the league and a .300 hitter.

Lawrence, Brockton and Worcester are close on the heels of Lowell and are sure to make things interesting for the Spindle City organization. Worcester is represented by a slashing team and is also out for flag honors.

New Bedford, Lynn, Haverhill and Fall River have all got pretty good teams. The cold weather has greatly retarded the work of the players, but they are expected to show their true form as soon as the weather becomes warm.

Rain has played havoc with the schedule and it will be necessary to play a number of double-headers this Summer. Many of the managers would rather take chances playing double-headers in the Summer when their players are in better condition than they are now.

Former Dorchester Star Now a Coach

The boys at Winthrop High School are elated over the announcement that Arthur W. Brayley had been appointed teacher and coach at their school. Brayley has been teaching commercial branches and coaching athletes at Vermont Academy, but will resign this position and accept a similar position at Winthrop High. He will start upon his duties at the beginning of school, next Fall.

Brayley formerly lived in Dorchester and made a reputation as an athlete at Dorchester High School. He was considered a fine pitcher. He also played on the basketball and football teams.

He has coached at Vermont Academy for the past three years and has turned out some exceptionally fine teams although he had to develop a lot of green material.

Brown Interclass Games Tomorrow

PROVIDENCE, May 7.—The annual Spring interclass track meet at Brown University will be held on Andrews Field tomorrow. Over a hundred men have been entered in the fourteen events, and a close race between the classes is anticipated. Contrary to the usual custom, no handicaps will be allowed, every event being a scratch race.

Track Coach OConnor believes that in this way, better than in any other, can the dark horse material be brought out.

LAFAYETTE AND HARVARD CLASH

The Batting Orders.

HARVARD.	LAFAYETTE.
Babson, l. f.	Fillmore, c. f.
Wingate, 3b.	Helfrich, 3b.
Clark, 1b.	Critchlow, 2b.
Potter, 2b.	Wright, c.
Reynolds, r. f.	Danneshower, 1b.
Reeves, c.	Cederquist, s. s.
Desha, s. s.	Melan, l. f.
Wigglesworth, c. f.	Altschuler, p.
Hitchcock, p.	Fager, p.

Harvard's batting order for the game this afternoon with Lafayette will remain the same as that of the last two games. This combination has begun to take on the look of the final one, although any bad miscues will be sure to be followed by a shift and a rest on the bench for the offender.

Coach Sexton has been drilling his men thoroughly, and although in the Amherst game two inexcusable blunders nearly threw away the game and only luck saved the Crimson, the men usually have been playing mid-season ball.

Rex Hitchcock, the big football tackle, has been chosen by Coach Sexton to start the game this afternoon for Harvard, and he will have on the receiving end of the battery "Heinie" Reeves, who has put up a fine game of ball all season.

Milholland is being held in readiness to jump into the game if any of the outfielders slip up, and he may yet be tried at the initial sack, although "Sid" Clark is showing up even better than was expected of him for his first season in collegiate baseball.

The game will be called at 4 o'clock, and a red-hot battle is expected.

GREEN READY FOR CRIMSON

HANOVER, N. H., May 7.—When Dartmouth meets Harvard in their annual track meet at the Stadium next Saturday there will be a few of the Green's best men out of the running.

Among the athletes laid up is Franz Marceau, the crack miler, who will be unable to compete on account of a pulled tendon. He was backed to give Lawless a hard run in the mile, and, without him, Dartmouth must rely on Harmon and Day. In the trials on Saturday Harmon ran a fast mile, and may be counted upon to make the Harvard runner show his best to win his race. Day ran on the four-mile relay team at the Penn relay games and is a hard fighter.

Jo. Dean and Harry Haywood will be the only men entered in the 880, but it will be difficult to beat this pair, for they are experienced and both have fine speed and endurance.

In the quarter Dartmouth will have three good runners, Captain Steinert, Gardner and O'Connor. Last year Steinert and Gardner finished second and third against the Crimson, but this year they are both looking for first place.

Both jumps should yield points for the Green. Enright and Mason are both entered in the high, and Buck and Enright in the broad. Last year Enright won both of these contests and Buck took third in the broad. This year, however, Buck has been doing over 21 feet and Enright has been getting close to that mark.

Wright and Buck are the Green's mainstays in the pole vault, and there is very little doubt [illegible] as to their pulling first and second. Wright does over 12 feet and Buck has done 11 feet 9 inches.

[illegible] event for the Green [illegible] throw. In this Tilley and Marden are entered, who captured first and second last year in every meet in which they competed. Marden has been throwing the hammer over 160 feet in practice and is recorded with a distance of 167 feet. Tilley has also done over 160 feet. Engleson, the football tackle, is also in this event and he can do over 150 feet consistently.

SCHOOL GAMES TODAY

High School of Commerce vs. Cambridge High and Latin at Fenway.
Mechanic Arts High vs. South Boston High at South Boston.
Newton High vs. Quincy High at Newton.
Brookline High vs. Wellesley High at Wellesley.
Roxbury Latin vs. Country Day at Newton.
[illegible] vs. Browne & Nichols at Allston.
Winthrop High vs. Chelsea High at Chelsea.
Revere High vs. Swampscott High at Revere.
Hingham High vs. Cohasset High at Cohasset.

Although the season games will be plentiful today, very few of any importance will be played. The Quincy High-Newton High game, which will take place at Claflin Field, Newtonville, will be the headline attraction of the day.

Much interest is centred on this game due to the fact that Quincy has been playing a good article of ball, and with their new pitcher Brown doing the [illegible] are out to beat the Triangular League champions.

Brown played centrefield in the first few games this season but later expressed his desire to become a pitcher. The coach admired the grit of the youngster and gave him a chance against Arlington High last Friday. Brown made good as he struck out nine men and held his opponents to one hit.

Brown is a [illegible] and those who have seen him [illegible] say that he will prove the sensation of the secondary season. Quincy places confidence in Brown and will pin their hopes to defeat Newton.

Whitney will be selected to oppose Brown on the mound. The work of the Newton team has been nothing wonderful this season as they have been playing an in-and-out brand of ball. Some days Newton has played championship ball and more times ragged ball.

However, the rooters have one consolation, and that is Newton is a heavy batting team and when they get their clubs swinging it is good night to the opposing team.

Brookline High will take a trip to Wellesley today and is out for another victory over the Wellesley High team. Although Wellesley has been playing fast ball this season they are not to be considered in Brookline's class and the latter should easily win.

Mechanic Arts should [illegible] to beating the South Boston High School. The game will be played at the [illegible] and will be more of a workout for the visitors and it is probable that several new men will be tried out [illegible].

Commerce and Cambridge [illegible] High will clash at the Fenway grounds in what should prove to be an interesting battle. The University City boys will bear [illegible] in the Triangular League this year and hope to defeat the Commerce team this afternoon.

Captain Jesseau's boys are out to wipe out the defeat handed to them by Dorchester High on Saturday and will play hard to take the visitors into camp.

In the private school games [illegible] meets Browne & Nichols at Allston, while the Roxbury Latin and the Country Day School will battle at Newton.

Of the out-of-town games the Revere-Swampscott game should be the best of the day. Swampscott is [illegible] of some fast boys and they are out to defeat Coach [illegible] team this afternoon. Chelsea is the favorite over Winthrop High. Hyde Park should defeat Stoneham while Hingham appears to have a little something on Cohasset.

While baseball will be the chief attraction of the day among the schoolboys no [illegible] of interest is being shown in the swimming meet between the Winthrop and English High Schools, which meet at the Cabot Street Gym late this afternoon.

This contest grew out of the recent Boston AMERICAN swimming championships for high schools held recently and shows that swimming is gaining a favorite place among the high school sports.

Twenty-two men will represent the light and dark blue. The addition of McNamara, [illegible], Fitzgerald and [illegible] has greatly strengthened the Montgomery Street boys and [illegible] should aid them today in defeating the Winthrop team.

Algar has been showing up in good style and this boy is a swimmer of no common ability. Winthrop has a fairly fast team and should be able to give the [illegible] boys a good run. They have beaten the Melrose and Latin [illegible] and many good swimmers are in the lineup.

Manager Stockman of the English team is anxious to arrange another swimming meet with the Latin School and has also issued another challenge to Melrose.

The bad weather kept the Mechanic Arts track candidates indoors yesterday but they expect to get out on the Charles [illegible] today. The most promising of the candidates are [illegible], O'Rourke, [illegible] and Sweeney, and the school will rely entirely on these boys to do the bulk of the scoring. [illegible] are down in their studies and will not be allowed to compete.

It was learned yesterday that Bill Brown, the mainstay of the Dorchester High School in the box, although pitching excellent ball, is in no fit condition to play baseball. Bill has been suffering from tonsilitis for the past few weeks. Ted Williams, the other end of the Dorchester battery, is also under the weather suffering from a bad sprain.

[illegible] of the High School of Commerce and of [illegible] scholastic note, is back in town [illegible] with Jersey City of the Eastern [illegible] League. [illegible] Hugh McBreen told him he needed a few more years' experience in [illegible] will be given a tryout with Lowell and is confident that he will make good.

Algar is [illegible] youngster at the English High School. He fell below in his studies for a while but made good again and was reinstated. He was immediately elected captain of the crew.

Overconfidence, which has [illegible] many a [illegible], seems to have got the best of young Ross, the fifteen-year-old twirler of the Melrose High School in the Everett game Saturday. With the game in his grasp he let up in the ninth inning after fanning J. Brickley and lost his contest.

Framingham High Schedule Announced

The football schedule of Framingham High was announced today. [illegible] games have been arranged, the first to be played on September 26 with Wellesley High and the closing game on November 21. A game with Natick High is also pending.

Framingham made a fine showing in the Midland League last season, and it is the hope of the coach to [illegible] the league title this season. Several members of last season's team have returned to school and many of the players that were substitutes last year should be ready to make a fine showing. Following is the schedule arranged:

Sept. 26 Wellesley at Wellesley.
Oct. 3 Weymouth at South Framingham.
Oct. 12 [illegible] at South Framingham.
Oct. 17 Wellesley at South Framingham.
Oct. 22 Waltham at Waltham.
Oct. 26 Marlboro at South Framingham.
Nov. 2 Milford at Milford.
Nov. 9 Hudson at Hudson.
Nov. 13 [illegible] at South Framingham.
Nov. 16 Weston at Weston.
Nov. 21 High School of Commerce at South Framingham.
Nov. 26 Natick (pending).

HOUCK CLASHES WITH CROUSE

By JACK CONWAY

BOSTON will get back strong [illegible] boxing map tonight. [illegible] and Leo Houck are scheduled to [illegible] twelve-round bout at the Pilgrim A. A. [illegible] past performances count [illegible] a stirring battle.

Crouse and Houck are [illegible] to the devotees of the manly game. [illegible] of these star middleweights have [illegible] at the Armory A. A. and have always [illegible] showings.

Crouse is one of the best [illegible] middleweights in the country. [illegible] twenty years of age and his exceptionally wonderful success since [illegible] boxing in 1908. The Pittsburg [illegible] sensation [illegible] boxer and [illegible] he is also a terrific puncher and [illegible] of winning by a knockout.

Houck has been [illegible] and is confident that [illegible] be returned the winner. [illegible] from a long and [illegible] and is feeling [illegible] fit [illegible] when Crouse is [illegible].

THE Pittsburg middleweight [illegible] town late yesterday afternoon. [illegible] his new Easter togs and sporting [illegible] cane [illegible] appearance covered with a [illegible] new golf cap [illegible] the game [illegible].

If Crouse [illegible] Houck [illegible] to [illegible] Evans of Pittsburg [illegible] that he is looking for [illegible] middleweights of the world.

Crouse and Houck [illegible] no-decision bout at Pittsburg last November and the [illegible] was [illegible]. Houck had no advantage [illegible] while Crouse did the best work at long range.

HOUCK has [illegible] performing form lately and [illegible] decisive margin [illegible] Lancaster [illegible] recently defeated Bat Moher in a [illegible] contest at Philadelphia. Houck [illegible] magnificent battle against [illegible] "Cave dweller" [illegible] forced the story [illegible].

When Houck [illegible] to defeat [illegible] Lancaster [illegible] feel it would be a mighty [illegible] for any boxer to defeat [illegible].

Neglected Powers

The fact is that civilized man, largely in consequence of the enormous development of writing and printing, has neglected his powers of mimicry, leaving them to be studied by his entertainers, such as actors and dancers. It is among the possibilities of the future that the human race may develop new unsuspected powers of expression. [illegible]

The eye itself [illegible] ability to express thought, which we have [illegible] to understand [illegible]. Every[illegible] read [illegible] in the eyes of his fellows, and quite as much perhaps, in their unconscious bodily move[illegible] of which we hear so [illegible] nowadays is only one form of this undeveloped power of conveying [illegible] thought which may [illegible] future before it.

A Wonderful Dancer

[illegible] we know, "telepathy" that [illegible] to project itself through [illegible] the late William T. Stead [illegible] distinguished victims of [illegible] disaster, believed, may prove to be no dream of enthusiasts, but a solid [illegible] important fact. In a story [illegible] of Space," I have [illegible] the ways in which [illegible] human powers of expression might be utilized by beings of a very high order of intelligence.

An article which I have just been reading in the May number of the [illegible] Metropolitan Magazine on a wonderful new English dancer, with a strange [illegible] "Roshanara" leads me to this brief discussion of a subject of vast human interest. It appears that this girl who learned her art in Bombay and Calcutta [illegible] astonishing London with its per[illegible] amazing power to express, by mere motions and poses, thoughts, fears, caprices, hopes, prayers, wish[illegible] and all that with a beauty and harmony of movement which captivates the beholders. She has taught her whole body to SPEAK, without opening her lips. She is a silent actress, who moves the spectators more than many actresses who have learned the whole art of elocution can do. But it is not ordinary pantomime that she practices—it is THE POETRY AND THE SPEECH OF MOTION.

All this is possible. No doubt the gift is a personal one. It is a kind of genius. Remote ancestral strains have, in her, come to the surface, refined by the ages of advance in intelligence which the race has undergone. Although of English birth, it will be observed that the girl developed her powers under the tropical sun of India. Here probably, she would be less of a wonder than she seems in lands where the tongue has been trained to tell all that is [illegible], while the innate powers of expression of the face, the eyes, the hands and the entire bodily frame possess have been be[illegible] atrophied by disuse.

[illegible] is a fair subject for philosophical [illegible] whether, upon the whole, it [illegible] be desirable for mankind to ac[illegible] or develop powers like those of this dancing girl. But it is certain that their [illegible] would render life more picturesque.

Under no conceivable circumstances, however, could language either spoken or printed be abandoned. That is a supreme acquisition which man never can, or should, lose. But who has not thoughts and feelings which he cannot put into words, but CAN express in other ways? A language would need a million words to express all our ideas and emotions—and even it would be too poor. So it is, at least worth considering whether the time may not come when we shall converse without words, and thus learn more about each other than we ever dreamed of knowing.

HUNTING A HUSBAND

NO. 1—THE CHARMING WIDOW MEETS HER FIRST SUITOR SINCE HER HUSBAND TOM'S DEMISE AND IS ATTRACTED TO HIM.

WHEN Tom Minor died, his wife, Beatrice, looked forward to a calm, rather [illegible] semi-solitary life. That [illegible] expected to live only for her children [illegible] should need her no longer, and [illegible] that point she did not allow her [illegible] to rove. She dreaded the loneliness [illegible] might then be hers.

She did not dread life without her husband, nor did she mourn him deeply, for hers had not been a happy marriage. Tom had grave faults, some of them amounting almost to sins, his wife thought. Whether they did or not, they made her so uncomfortable and unhappy that while her husband's sudden death was a shock to her she was conscious that, with the pity she felt for him because he had been snatched out of life, there was mingled scarcely any pity for herself. She had long been aware that her children, Jack and Jean, were the dearest things in life to her. She had them, and Tom's departure had been an unexpected solution of the knotty problem of their joyless married existence. She remembered gratefully now that the true condition of affairs had been unguessed by the world at large, that there had been no open scandal.

For the first year of her widowhood she had thrust from her as [illegible] the possibility of her marrying a second time. "I love my freedom too much," she acknowledged to herself. To her friends she said "I do not want to put anybody in Tom's place." To them the sentence meant one thing; to the widow another. She added mentally "Lord forbid!" remembering Tom and his ways. At the expiration of her second year of freedom she began to lighten her black and found that with the donning of soft and becoming grays, and delicious and equally becoming lavenders and purples, her spirits rose. Life seemed still bright and the world a place in which to have a good time and to make the most of one's self and one's opportunities. Why must she because of one mistake or error in judgment be doomed to live a solitary existence until she was an old woman? Somehow the children, as dear as ever, satisfied only one side of her nature. Instead of thinking that she would live for them and them only, she began to appreciate that [illegible] more of life and other people to [illegible] live for others besides their [illegible] she would be even lonelier than at present.

One Lesson Enough

So, gradually but surely, grew upon her the conviction that, perhaps, after all, there might be a second Springtime for her. For a while she turned from the idea, for with her was also the recollection of her conjugal infelicity. But soon she persuaded herself that she would not make such a mistake a second time. Surely she had learned her sad lesson well. The scars she still bore from the fire that had burned her, had made her wary and watchful of all things that might scorch her, and she was not to be fooled a second time by any man. She was no longer an ignorant and foolish girl, but a woman made wise by suffering. And, as other people were happily married probably her experience had been the exception, not the rule. Surely she might still be as happy as these wedded friends of hers. She was still young, she told herself, for thirty-three is not old.

Her two years of peace seemed to have rejuvenated her, and it was only when she was very tired that she looked her age. While her income from Tom's life insurance was sufficient to provide her and her children with the necessities of life if she was careful, she did not like to be careful. Now she must economize in order to have enough to spend on pretty clothes she loved and which she felt were her right. As her children grew older they would cost more than now, for she owed them a good education and the advantages which other young people had. How she would have to struggle to give them these necessities and herself the luxuries for which her soul longed! Yes, she would do well to marry again.

But she would not be hasty. With eyes made clear by past experience in matrimony, she would study every possible suitor. She would recall each of Tom's faults and would consider others, which he might have had, but which, strangely enough, he had overlooked in forming his character. And if any man had any of these, or lacked any of the admirable traits, which she expected from the man of her choice, she would exclude him immediately from her calculations.

An Exacting Creature

A woman, unless she is in love, is an exacting creature, and she has often decided against some man for as slight a reason as an unfortunate trick of manner, a lack of some small courtesy, or some tactless speech. A man can scarcely understand this, and it is this trait in women that makes him find her incomprehensible.

When she loves a man she shuts her eyes to his imperfections, and will marry a boor if he has been clever enough or has possessed enough personal magnetism to keep her ignorant of his true nature until she has fallen in love with him. But lacking love, she is a keen and sometimes an unmerciful critic of him whom she considers as a possible husband—especially if she has had one bitter matrimonial experience.

The truth, summed up in a nutshell, is that she wishes perfection in the man upon whom she bestows her hand, and, presumably, her heart, and, as no man is perfect she is often disappointed. No woman is not complex, as men believe her to be. Woman is so simple that she seems complex. She wants perfection, that is all, and will accept nothing less when she once demands it. So man cannot understand that she is repelled and disillusioned by some ill-timed joke, or lack of consideration, or small rudeness on his part. She does not love him, but she wants him to be her ideal. And he isn't.

Thus it came about that Beatrice Minor, being a woman, determined to be satisfied with nothing less than the best, and began to look about for it. As she looked, she found that there were many attractive men still unmarried, many, still more attractive, who were married, and some widowers who, having vowed eternal fidelity to the memory of the dear departed, had found at last that devotion to a blessed ghost or a sweet and fading memory was not as soul satisfying as was companionship with a bright and living feminine personality.

Her First Suitor

To the widower class belonged Robert Marcy. He had been desperately crushed and much bereaved when his wife died. Now his friends were secretly asking about him the old conundrum—"Why is a widower like a baby?" and chuckling over its veracious answer—"Because he cries all the first six months, begins to take notice during the second six months, and it is hard to pull him through the second Summer."

When Marcy met Mrs. Minor, it was the beginning of the "second Summer" after his wife's death. A friend at whose house the widow and widower chanced to be calling introduced the pair to each other, speaking of Beatrice as "one of my very good acquaintances of whom I have seen too little of late."

This last sentence was uttered with a regretful sigh, to which the widower responded with one that was supposed to be a delicate tribute to the companion of his happier days. Then, gazing into the eyes of the woman to whom he had just been presented, he found their owner pleasant to look at, while Beatrice, noting his bright smile, told herself that here was a good looking man whom it might be pleasant to know better.

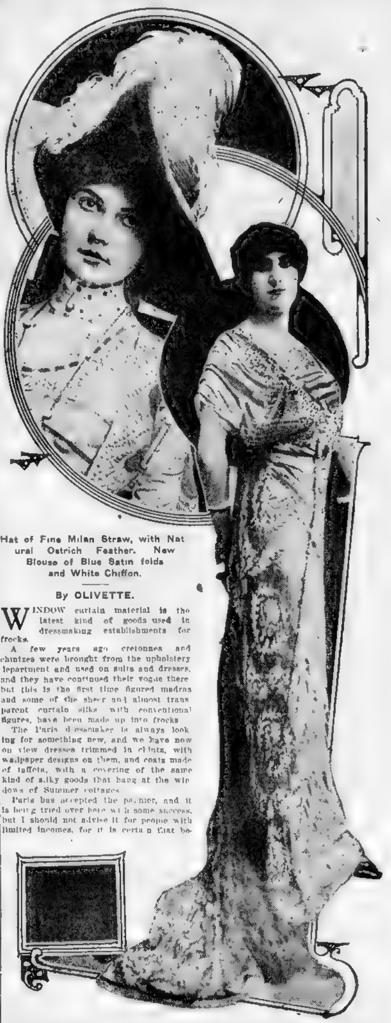
What Dame Fashion Is Offering

A Fashionable Straw Hat and a Magnificent Evening Gown



Hat of Fine Milan Straw, with Natural Ostrich Feather. New Blouse of Blue Satin folds and White Chiffon.

A Buzenet Gown in the New Transparent Summer Brocade, two Shades of Yellow, with a Drapery of Violet Chiffon.

By OLIVETTE.

WINDOW curtain material is the latest kind of goods used in dressmaking establishments for frocks.

A few years ago cretonnes and chintzes were brought from the upholstery department and used on suits and dresses, and they have continued their vogue there but this is the first time figured madras and some of the sheer and almost transparent curtain silks with conventional figures, have been made up into frocks.

The Paris dressmaker is always looking for something new, and we have now on view dresses trimmed in chintz, with wallpaper designs on them, and coats made of taffeta, with a covering of the same kind of silky goods that hang at the windows of Summer cottages.

Paris has accepted the pannier, and it is being tried over here with some success, but I should not advise it for people with limited incomes, for it is certain that before Autumn the present pannier will undergo all kinds of transformation. Undoubtedly we shall have frocks of two materials, with the petticoat of one kind of goods and overdress and train of another.

In the meantime more conservative people are building their frocks more on the old lines, with a high waist and a tunic or apron of lace or the material of which the waist is made, and which is often of a contrasting shade to the skirt.

The beautiful evening frock illustrated is a creation by Buzenet, the well known French dressmaker, who is a woman of fashion, as so many of them are. This frock is of the sheerest and lightest brocade in two shades of yellow. Brocades sound as if they were heavy materials, but nowadays they are anything but that.

The sleeves and bod[illegible] of this frock are of the palest pink chiffon, with a h[illegible] sort of sunburst, the rays emanating from the front of the waist, and fashioned of tiny crystals. From the back of the right shoulder there floats a drapery of violet chiffon, only about half a yard wide, which goes to the left side of the gown and falls to the hem. The color is not exactly violet, it is more a smoke with violet shades, and like the brocade is one of those materials especially dyed for this house.

Almost every dress must have its little coat this Summer, and one of these little jackets of silk taffeta or silk covered with tulle is one of the most serviceable investments a woman can make. Another good bargain is a lace tunic which is sold everywhere and brings last year's fashions up to this year's requirements.

THE MANICURE LADY

"I HAVE just came back from a trip to the country," said the Manicure Lady. "Goodness knows, George, I hated to leave it. Them country people always makes you feel so at home. There ain't any tunnel guards there, or any skyscrapers, or any mashers at the corner of different streets and Tremont, but the home cooking is excellent, and you can get all the pure country air you want. And think of all them little fishes in the little brooks and the flora fauna in the trees, George."

"I'll bet you don't know what flora fauna is, kiddo," said the skeptical Head Barber.

"It is some kind of treetoad, George," replied the Manicure Lady. "They are the funniest little things you ever seen. The landlord's son found one for me and brother Wilfred. It was green, so they couldn't see it among the leaves if they wanted to shoot it. The landlord's son was never in the city, George, and ain't smart like us folks, but he was awful kind. He showed me and Wilfred all over the place. One of the things he showed us was a cunning little wild animal called a wampus. He said that it always lived on a side hill on account of the fact, George, that its two right legs was shorter than its two left legs. And he explained that it was all the time on the right of the hill, and that it always had to walk straight ahead. He said it couldn't turn around, so it kept walking."

"Did he tell you all that?" inquired the grinning Head Barber.

"Certainly he did, George, and I don't see nothing for you to be grinning about, either. If one of them simple country lads wants to be nice to city folks that has had more chances than him, and more education, I don't think it is none of your business to make fun of him.

"Another thing he showed me and Wilfred was a mineral spring. He said that in the Winter the water in it tasted like hot whiskey, and that in the Spring it turned to sulphur and molasses. Ain't it grand, the ways that Nature has of taking care of them innocent people up there? You see, George, they don't get a chance to see many papers, so they can't read health hints and beauty hints like we can, so Nature has springs for them just like the one of which I was just telling you of. What in the world are you grinning about? Anybody would think you was as simple as the little fellow that showed us around up there."

"I don't blame him for grinning," declared the Head Barber. "He was stringing you."

"You're dippy!" exclaimed the Manicure Lady. "Imagine anybody from a small town stringing a city girl."

Up-to-Date Jokes

A professor rebuked the hidebound grammarian at a dinner with a story.

"A lady," he said, "had a rather dissipated husband, and one evening she said to a friend:

"'I wish I knew where George was!'

"The friend, a professor's wife, said, primly:

"'I presume, dear, you mean you wish you knew where he is?'

"'No, I don't,' said the lady. 'I know where he is. He is upstairs in bed with bloodshot eyes and a terrific headache. I want to know where he was.'"

"I wonder," remarked a youthful astronomer who was very slow in doing what was expected of him, "if—if you will let me associate you with a star—Venus, perhaps, the star of love?"

"Well, no," replied the young lady addressed, thoughtfully, "I would rather you thought of me as Saturn."

"Indeed! Why?"

"Oh, well you know, didn't you tell me that Saturn has a ring?"

He bought one the following day.

Rough on Reggie

"OH, my dear!" gushed Gertie. "Have you heard about Maud's hard luck?"

"No. What is it?" asked Maud's bosom friend, with glee.

"She took Reggie's engagement ring back to the jeweler's to be valued. Oh, poor Maudie!"

"Well, that's nothing!" sneered the other. "I always do that."

"Yes, but the jeweler refused to give it back to her. He said Reggie hadn't paid for it!"

IT'S A BEAR, IT'S A BEAR, IT'S A BEAR
EVERBODY'S DOING THE TURKEY TROT, EVEN CLAUDE AND ROSAMOND. NOW TO GET A HORSE AND ESCAPE
BEARSKI
I'VE GOT YOU NOW, PROUD ROSAMOND
DESMOND YOU CUR, I HATE YOU!
MY SWEETHEART MUST BE SAVED, COSSACKS!
HA, HA
HERSHFIELD

I.—IN THE HANDS OF THE COSSACKS.
Claude Eclaire, hero, has captured the villain, Desmond, and he and Rosamond now hand their prisoner over to the Cossacks, whose reputation is enough to make a stronger heart than Desmond's quail. The Cossacks are glad to get an opportunity of having some fun at the expense of the international crook.

II.—"DANCE."
The Cossacks, having a great admiration for Western cowboys, now adopt a cowboy habit with Desmond. They command him to dance for them, and, to increase his speed, they fire bullets into the ground at his feet. This causes Desmond to display really astonishing agility, and the Cossacks enjoy his antics greatly.

III.—THE TURKEY TROTSKI.
So infectious does the spirit of Desmond's dancing prove that presently all the Cossacks are trying to do the Turkey Trot, completely forgetting the dances of their native country. A Cossack isn't a very graceful creature at any time, and these, as you see, look absolutely ridiculous in their prancing.

IV.—STEPPING LIVELY.
As the crowd dances, even Claude forgets about Desmond for the time, and gallantly leads out Rosamond for a turn. Needless to say, Rosamond dances divinely, and her grace fascinates Desmond more than ever, so that he resolves to steal her away again right from Claude and all his allies, the dread Cossacks.

V.—AWAY WITH THE GIRL.
It is the work of a moment for Desmond to leap upon a horse, and, as he spurs it forward, to snatch Rosamond right out of Claude's arms. It is the greatest humiliation that Claude has yet experienced, and will not improve his standing with the rough Russian horsemen around him.

VI.—IN FULL CRY.
"I'm the boyski!" cries Desperate Desmond, as he spurs his steed across the steppes, with Rosamond in his power. Little does he reck that the Cossacks are urging their horses after him, for he has supreme confidence in his own power. Claude presses the chase, but its result we cannot know until tomorrow's pictures appear.

A Story of Japanese Plotters—Love, Mystery and Tragedy—Based on the Great Play Now Running in New York

By W. J. M'CONAUGHY.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

HIRONARI stared after her a moment and then laid his hand on Tokoramo's arm.

"Dear brother, what sort of girl is that?" he asked, wonderingly.

Tokoramo hesitated a moment. "Well, she is a little—she is a rather unusual woman," he said and left the boy before he could be pressed with further questions. Another pair discussed Illona with interest. Joshakawa and Kobohashi found an opportunity to exchange a few words apart while Monotario, one of the younger men, was telling Illona the legend of the tea leaves.

"This is a dreadful woman!" declared the older man. "Let us leave here and take council at once. Something must be done!"

"I told you I thought Tokoramo should be rid of her," said Kobohashi.

"I will see that it is attended to!" declared Joshakawa with grim determination. He eyed the young woman's eager, smiling face, with malevolence. Monotario, flattered by her attention, was telling the quaint old story in his best style. Illona had remarked nothing really refreshed her so much as a cup of good tea.

"Do you know the story—why the brew of the tea leaves is so stimulating?" he asked. Illona gave him to understand that she had never heard it and that life would be dull and colorless until she did. This was the old Japanese tale as Illona Kerner heard it in a library in Berlin, told by a soft-eyed, soft-voiced son of Nippon, his European clothes hidden beneath the folds of a flowered silk kimono.

A Quaint Story.

"Many, many centuries ago, before the coming of our Lord Buddha, there lived in the shadow of Fujiyama a most holy man. His life was consecrated to the worship of the old gods. With his increasing years his zeal grew and as his strength waned the fire of his devotion burned higher. Early and late, at dawn and sunset and far into the night, he prayed and worshipped and gave himself less and less time for sleep.

"At last he made up his mind that sleep was but a waste of the few years that we are given upon earth and he resolved that he would sleep no more but give his days and nights to prayer and righteous deeds.

"But as the days past he found that he could not remain awake. In spite of his great will and his zeal for prayer he could not prevent his eyelids from drooping. He dozed before the altars and his weakness filled him with despair. He pondered for hours over ways to avoid sleep and prayed for strength, but with no avail until at last the gods showed him the way. One night when he was sinking to sleep he seized a sharp knife and cut off his eye-lids so that his eyes must remain open.

"The lid he cast out of the temple door and thereafter, though weary and dizzy he remained awake. A few days later he passed the place where he had thrown the treacherous eye-lids, and lo! a strange new plant had sprung up from the ground. He plucked one of the leaves and smelled it and was refreshed. He gathered more of them and brewed a drink of the leaves. Behold! All weariness and heaviness left him! He was young again—young and afire with zeal.

"He thanked the gods with new fervor and the plant grew and spread and the holy man drank the drink that he brewed from the leaves and never knew sleepiness or weariness again.

"And the little growth that sprang up from the eyelids of the holy man was the first of the tea-plants." . . . .

Illona made a wry face and looked down at her half-emptied tea cup.

"I don't think I like that story," she declared. Monotaris laughed silently and began removing his kimono. He had caught a signal from Joshakawa's eyes. Illona glanced about her. Tokoramo alone of the whole company still wore his kimono.

"Why! Are you all leaving?" she cried, in injured tones. "Am I driving you away?"

"Do not go yet, my friends!" urged Tokoramo.

"We must go home," said Joshakawa, gravely. They bowed singly and en masse and silently filed out of the room, Tokoramo closing the door after the last one. The exit was so sudden and unexpected that Illona barely had time to call out a "Goodby," before they were gone.

"I Must Work!"

"WHAT a shame!" pouted Illona, as Tokoramo returned to her. "I've driven off all your friends!—and they matched the rooms so nicely, too!"

Tokoramo made no comment.

"I have driven them all away!" repeated the girl, as if hoping for a gallant denial, which did not come. "They will be angry and—and say mean things! And, you," she drew closer to him appealing, "and you are angry, too!"

Tokoramo gazed at her calmly.

"I? No, not at all," he replied in his quiet voice.

"Yes, you are!" insisted Illona, putting her arms around his neck and letting herself sink softly in against him. "Why don't you scold me? Please don't be angry!"

"Not at all," he assured her gravely.

"Oh, I will be a silent, stupid little mouse like Teri, and sit, all humility, in a chair if you will only look at me and smile!"

She gazed up into his face with half-closed eyes and half-parted lips until his eyes slowly wandered down to hers.

"Smile!" she whispered. He contrived a boyish contortion of the features as one would humor a child. She released him with a low, happy laugh and ran to the arm chair by the desk, where she disposed of herself in a coiled-up ball.

"And now I am a mouse!" she declared, with a flashing smile at him. "Thankful for forgiveness!"

Tokoramo sat on the edge of the settee with a weary little sigh that escaped her. The woman's volatile nature prohibited the role of the quiet mouse for any appreciable length of time and she was soon all over the room again. She made faces at the Buddha until Tokoramo closed the little gilt doors. She made amusing comments on the prints and finally donned one of the kimonos, with little cries of delight over the quality of the silk and the excellence of the workmanship.

At last she sat down once more and they were silent for a while. Suddenly she looked up at him and demanded:

"Do you like Teri?"

He appeared to be thinking. "Who?" he inquired politely.

"Teri."

"Who is Teri?" he asked with courteous interest.

"As if you didn't know!" she exclaimed. "The girl who was with me here today."

"Oh!" he exclaimed apologetically, "I hardly saw her."

"She talked of you all the way home," remarked Illona. Then she went on pensively, "I suppose, some one of these days she will come here to you—alone—and talk about me. Will you let her in?"

"I admit any one who calls," he replied gravely.

"Will you listen to her if she slanders me?" demanded the woman.

"Why should she slander you?" he asked mildly.

"I don't know," replied Illona with a sigh of resignation, "but I feel perfectly sure that she is coming here one of these days and lie about me."

"But why should she?" asked Tokoramo again. "She seems a gentle, simple girl."

"H-m!" said Illona, with something rather more than doubt in her voice and manner. "Women are women!"

Tokoramo did not see fit to quarrel with this oracular utterance. He rose with a tired air.

"Well," he said indifferently, as he moved over to her chair. "If you lie about one another I do not care to know it. I am interested in you and what you mean to me—that is all!" He patted her cheek tenderly and went on around the desk to his working chair. Illona followed him with her eyes.

"Do you mean that?" she asked in a low voice, as if she could not believe the wonder of it.

"Otherwise I should not say it," he replied gravely, as he turned on the desk light and adjusted it so that the rays fell on the manuscript before him. Illona's eyes, as she watched him, shone with love and yearning.

"You will always believe in me?" she half whispered.

"I shall always try to," he corrected, in a grave, precise way. "Come, Illona!" he added with a touch of command. "Forget your petty jealousies—I am somewhat weary!"

The woman winced slightly, but made no reply. He dipped a little brush in the ink and bent over his work. She watched him a few minutes in silence, and her eyes filled with tears and her heart with love and pity as she saw the lines of weariness, strangely marked in the young, strong face. She rose and, coming softly around to him, gently drew the brush out of his fingers. He looked up with a frown of vexation, but she slid her other arm around his neck and kissed him between the eyes.

"I will be very good!" she pleaded. "But—you are so tired! Come and sit on the divan—sit beside me! You have so many cares—your people worry you so!"

For a moment he seemed about to repulse her, but his face cleared; he smiled and, with a little shrug of shoulders, arose and let himself be led to a seat on the settee. He moved like an automaton and sat like a toy soldier or the statue of a Remeses by the Nile. Illona eyed him with disapproval.

"You don't look comfortable or natural in a chair or on a divan," she decided. She seized a couple of cushions and plumped them down at her feet. "Here! Now you can be comfortable—unless you—would it be beneath you to sit at my feet?"

He glanced at her with a smile and slid down onto the cushions.

"What a whimsical child you are!" he exclaimed. She disposed herself so that his head might rest against her knee and drew him gently back to her.

"Now," she said, "will it rest you to sit quietly this way?"

He touched her hand lightly as it hung over his shoulder. "Yes," he said.

"Perhaps I can help you in this way a little—yes?" she asked wistfully, after a little pause. "Oh, if I could only help you some way to do your work!"

He stirred a little uneasily. "You would not understand the work Illona," he said quietly. "It would tire you."

Illona made a little move at the smooth black head on her knee.

"I might understand the work if you would tell me," she said resentfully. "If you would show me. I'm not dull!"

"It is for Japan," said Tokoramo, as if that answered all, and there was the fervent note in his voice that she had always heard when he pronounced the name of his native land.

"But, tell me!" she pleaded. "Tell me about everything!"

He shook his head. "I can't tell you," he said gravely.

"No?" she pouted. "Can't you tell me everything as you would a wife—a mother?"

"The men of Japan tell the women very little of their work," he replied.

"Have you no love in Japan?" she demanded, her bosom beginning to heave a little.

"A great deal."

"Your wives—are they not everything—close to you—closer than everything?"

"Our wives!" he repeated softly. "I cannot speak of them, for I am a man alone. I must do my work alone."

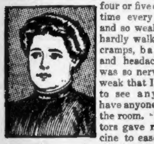
(To Be Continued Tomorrow).

ILLONA PLEADS WITH THE JAPANESE

"But you are so tired," she pleaded. "Come and sit on the divan with me."

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

PLAN A "SWAP" TO BOOST PORT

Subject to the action of the Legislature on an unimportant feature of the transaction, the Directors of the Port of Boston have planned an exchange with the New Haven Road for the Commonwealth Pier and adjacent South Boston property.

In exchange, the Directors of the Port will give a parcel of land bounded by C, Fargo and E streets and Mt. Washington avenue. They have asked the Legislature to discontinue all other streets within those limits, and to construct E street from Cypher to Fargo.

The swap was made after some negotiating with Vice-President Byrnes of the New Haven. The pier has long been inaccessible and was never finished, and in fact its only value to the railroad was the opportunity to extend the freight yard which immediately adjoined. For this reason the railroad was willing to exchange.

MELROSE HAS TWO ALDERMEN'S JOBS NOBODY WANTS

Wanted—Two men of legal age, citizens of Ward 2, Melrose, to serve as members of the board of aldermen for the remainder of the present year.

If such an advertisement is inserted in the papers of Melrose it will not be surprising, for a search of Ward 2, Melrose Highlands, has failed to reveal two men who are willing to become aldermen. The mixup is caused by the resignations of the present members from that ward, Dexter G. Pratt and Clifford N. Cochrane. Both have removed from the city. Their resignations are ready to be handed to the board, but no successors can be found. To save the city the expense of a special election, the resignations may be withheld until July 1. Aldermen Pratt and Cochrane won their seats in one of the hottest contests known in the city. There were four candidates, but neither of the defeated men wishes to serve.

Best Interior Player-Piano THE AUTOPIANO

The Autopiano unites in a single instrument a high-class upright, which can be played with the hands (the old way), and the player-piano, which is played with the perforated music-roll (the new way), thus enabling anyone, young or old, to render in a finished manner any musical composition. The construction of the Autopiano is most durable, and, unlike others, who use rubber tubes in construction—in the Autopiano lead tubes are used and are indestructible. Its sweet tone is unequaled.

PIANO BARGAINS THIS WEEK

We have a number of pianos, taken in exchange for the Autopiano, which must be disposed of at once. They have been carefully overhauled in our own workrooms and are in the pink of condition.

Terms so reasonable that you cannot afford to miss this opportunity to buy a splendid piano. See us before you purchase.

Why Women Should Vote

Not to Help Women, but to Help MEN. Women Will Improve All Governments, Nullify the Bad Men, Multiply the Good Men by Two

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Whether you believe in female suffrage or not, whether you WANT to see women vote or not, make up your mind to this:

Women are going to vote. They are going to have their say in the laws that rule them and their children. They are going to add morality, benevolence and kindness to man's governing selfishness, AND NOTHING WILL STOP IT.

There is a time for each important work. THIS IS THE TIME TO WORK AND GET THE VOTE FOR WOMEN.

You will hear the subject discussed often in this newspaper. You are invited to join in the discussion. The Boston AMERICAN has talked of votes for women often—but that was only the beginning. We purpose now to promote that subject, as we opposed cruel pigeon shooting and criminal racetrack gambling, each in turn. And we shall succeed in this "votes for women" campaign, as we succeeded in the others, BY THE HELP OF WOMEN.

Our purpose is to interest, first of all, the poorer women. It is easy for the rich and prosperous "lady" to discuss in a distant, indifferent way her future and her rights. She has comfort, luxury and ease now. Her rights do not really worry her very much, except as an added luxury.

Those especially interested, and in whom the AMERICAN is especially interested, are the poorer women—women whose husbands or fathers earn two dollars a day, or five or ten dollars a day perhaps. They are the women that really pay the cost of government today.

Is not our government a trust government? Are not the real taxes in this country imposed BY THE TRUSTS?

The man with a little house pays a little tax on that house. And he pays to the government a little tax on his tobacco or his beer, if he uses either, and another little tax on his woollen suit. But the government doesn't get the REAL tax. That goes to the trusts. The real tax laid upon the people, WITHOUT REPRESENTATION IN THE TAXING BODY, is made by the trusts.

There is Mr. Rockefeller's tax from the Oil Trust. There is the tax from the Sugar Trust and the Meat Trust and all the other trusts.

WHO PAYS THOSE TAXES? THE WOMEN PAY THEM. They spend the household money, and the trusts raise their incomes by taxes in the household.

The women of the poorer families, the wives of men with four or five hundred dollars a year, or of the lucky man with his three or four thousand dollars a year, THEY PAY THE COST OF OUR TRUST GOVERNMENT.

The poorer women pay the taxes; the poorer women should be allowed to vote.

There are a hundred ways of looking at this question of votes for women, and no matter how you look at it, if you respect women, if you have a good mother, a good wife, good daughters and sisters, GOOD WOMEN AROUND YOU, YOU MUST WORK IN FAVOR OF THE VOTE FOR WOMEN.

Suppose a woman holds stock in a railroad. Is she not allowed to vote like any man, as a stockholder in that railroad?

Is not every woman in America a stockholder in this NATION? Do not the women of America CREATE the nation? Will there be anything left of the United States a hundred years from now, EXCEPT THE CHILDREN CREATED BY THE WOMEN LIVING IN THE UNITED STATES?

Is not the nation made up of its people, and do not the women CREATE the people? Are they not entitled to an opinion, to cast a vote, in the lawmaking, in the country governing, in the tax imposing?

You will hear women say that they do not want to vote, they are happy as they are, quite contented. And this is said often by some of the best women, the most intelligent in certain directions, excellent morally.

We would ask them to remember that exactly the same thing was said by the black slaves when abolition was suggested. When there was talk of freeing the slaves, many of the very best behaved, most worthy among the slaves, said: "We do not want freedom; we do not want abolition; we are satisfied as we are."

But those very good slaves that wanted to REMAIN slaves realize now that any kind of freedom was better than any kind of slavery.

And to the women, well-meaning, satisfied, intelligent, BUT NARROW, we would say, and we shall often repeat, THAT WHILE THEY MAY THINK THEY ARE CONTENTED IN THEIR SLAVERY, ONCE THEY GET FREEDOM, ONCE THEIR MORAL CHARACTER IS EXPRESSED IN THE COUNTRY'S GOVERNMENT, THEY WILL FIND THE FREEDOM AND THE RIGHTS OF THE VOTER INFINITELY PREFERABLE TO PEACEFUL, WELL-DRESSED, SILKY SLAVERY.

Dorothy Dix Writes

OF

The Silly Girl Who Is in Love With a Married Man

By DOROTHY DIX.

I HAVE a letter from a silly girl who writes:

"I am very much in love with a married man, who takes me out two or three times a week to dinners and the theatre. This man swears that he worships me, but he says that he doesn't intend to get a divorce from his wife because it would injure his business—he is a doctor—and that he doesn't want to give up his children. But he says he loves me better than anything on earth. Do you think he loves me when he frankly tells me that there is no chance of my ever becoming his wife?"

Does a man love a girl when he is deliberately ruining her good name for his own selfish pleasure?

Does a man love a girl when he places her in a position that he would shoot any other man down like a dog if he placed his own daughter or sister in?

Does a man love a girl when he takes the best years of her life and gives her nothing for them but shame and regret?

Does a Man Who Can't Marry a Girl Really Love the Girl?

Does a man love a girl when he wins her love, knowing that he cannot marry her, and that he is keeping her from loving some other man who could marry her, and who would give her a home and the natural joy of woman, wifehood and motherhood?

Any girl who asks if a married man, who ruthlessly offers her up as a sacrifice to his passion, loves her, is a fit inmate for an asylum for the feeble-minded. She hasn't intelligence enough to be allowed out in public. She needs a guardian, or to be locked up somewhere in a padded cell until she can take a good long think, and estimate just what such a love is worth—the love that brings her degradation instead of honor.

Over and above the folly and sin a girl commits in permitting herself to fall in love with a married man and accepting attention from him the idiocy of the thing appalls one. It shows such an utter lack of intelligence to play a game in which the cards are all stacked against you, and in which you are bound to lose out in the end. It brands one as such an easy mark to be lured into a game where one's opponent takes none of the risks.

For when a married man inveigles a girl into a love escapade he isn't even a square sport. She takes all the chances, he none. She gets all the blame, all the criticism, she loses reputation and character, and people look at her askance. They jolly him about his new conquest, and about being such a devil of a fellow among the women. It's pretty unequal, isn't it?

And a woman's a mighty foolish, unsophisticated, soft kind of a mush to fall for it, don't you think?

How Does the Girl Figure Out the Result of the Situation?

How does the girl who has an affair with a married man figure out the situation? Where does she expect to come in? If she hopes to gain any advantage from it she must count on breaking up the man's home, and that's a cold blooded piece of villainy that anybody short of a Lucretia Borgia might stop short of.

Certainly no girl with a married man's kiss on her lips dares to kneel down and whisper a prayer. She couldn't have the effrontery to ask God to bless her when she had been doing the best she could to bring sorrow on another woman's head, and rob a wife of the one dearest to her in life. Surely such a girl's dreams must be nightmares through which wail the cries of the little children from whom she is trying to steal their father.

It is an evil house, in which no woman lives happily or secure, that she builds on the wrecks of another woman's home that she has torn down. Yet if a girl isn't planning such a home for herself when she abets a married man in being false to his wife, what is she doing? If she doesn't expect him to divorce his wife and marry her what future does she conjure up for herself?

She knows that she is deliberately putting herself off from marriage with any other man, because there is nothing that so bespatters a girl's garments with mud as such an affair.

The girl may be really innocent of any actual wrong doing. She may have been more silly and sentimental than sinning, but the mere fact that she received a married man's attentions when she knew that they were bound to compromise her in the eyes of the world, and that she was willing to run such a risk, makes people invariably put the worst construction possible upon her acts.

Another way in which a girl's love affair with a married man is disastrous to her is that it almost always leaves her bankrupt in heart. She has given to him all the love, all the tenderness, all the faith and sweetness that were in her, and she has no more left. I have seen many such women, who developed into sour, disgruntled old maids. I have seen many other such women who married, and who were weary, bored, joyless wives, who gave a hard, cold duty to their husbands in return for the love that good men lavished upon them. These women had broken their alabaster box at the feet of false gods, and they had nothing to offer up to the true god of love.

I do not deny that there are real tragedies in which a married man, tied to a wife who is unworthy or uncongenial, and for whom he has no particle of affection, does sometimes meet a girl who is his real soul mate, and for whom he has an overwhelming love. But such a man, inspired by a real and honest love, would die before he would hurt the girl, or compromise her. If his love can bring her nothing but sorrow, he goes away and leaves her.

The acid test of a man's love for a woman is whether it cherishes and protects her, or hurts her. Try that, girls, when a married man makes love to you, and you'll send him back to the home where he belongs.

Whom Shall the Democrats Nominate for Vice-President? O'Gorman or Foss?

Now that the nomination of Speaker Champ Clark to lead the National Democratic ticket seems well advanced and practically assured, the question of a vice-presidential nominee rises to timely and national importance.

It appears certain that in any outcome of the Baltimore Convention the vice-presidential nominee must come from one of the Eastern States.

Champ Clark is from Missouri, Harmon from Ohio, Marshall from Indiana, Underwood from Alabama, and the dark horses neighing in the presidential stable are nearly all Western or Middle Western and Southern men.

The running mate of any one of these men must under any reasonable sectional distribution register from a State north of the Potomac and east of the Alleghanies.

Who shall that man be?

Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York presents some ideal qualifications for the second place. It will be difficult to find a Democrat who embodies better qualities and conditions to make him eligible from any standpoint. He is one of the most universally popular Senators of the United States. He has high character, great abilities and a wonderful capacity for making and holding friends—a born diplomat and harmonizer in party and State. In the Senate of the United States he represents New York, the greatest of American Commonwealths, whose vote in any national convention and in the after election is of dominating importance. And perhaps no Democrat in the Empire State could come so nearly to uniting all factions in his behalf as the junior Senator from New York. His character and record are unimpeachable.

Clark and O'Gorman would make an ideal ticket, and for that matter O'Gorman would fit in with any other presidential name. He is sure of a careful and friendly consideration at Baltimore.

Along with O'Gorman's name comes that of the favorite son of Massachusetts.

No name shines clearer and more definite in the ranks of progressive Democracy than that of Governor Foss. His record of achievement is without a superior among the Democratic victories of the present era. Upon a platform essentially progressive in all its details, he has swept the conservative Commonwealth of Massachusetts in successive elections for Congress and the Governorship, and is regarded as practically invincible in the Bay State.

"Clark and Foss" would also sound well and draw well all over the country.

The Democracy is rich in material for vice-presidential service, but these two names loom just now with especial power and significance.

The Effect of the Human Voice

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

VOICES affect me like music; like perfumes; like scenes in Nature.

I have heard the voice of a man or a woman who was not visible; and all the atmosphere changed as if a sudden wind had arisen; or as if an eclipse had taken place at noonday; or as if a "light that never was on land or sea" had risen in the skies at night.

Once in the desert of the commonplace I heard a Voice, and instantly I was enveloped in beauty. Statues gleamed from hidden niches; and fountains played; and there were culture and repose and charm over all my world.

Voices are exact reflections of the mind and soul; or they are echoes from past incarnations.

Not all soft voices are pleasant; not all loud voices are unpleasant. It depends upon the Quality.

There is a woman who is crowned with youth and classic beauty. She is like a marble goddess to see; and ofttimes I have beheld her moving about exquisitely kept lawns, under the shadow of great trees.

A Woman Whose Beauty Pleases the Eye Until She Speaks

She is a picture to please the eye; a picture—until she speaks. Always when her voice reaches my ears the same thing occurs. The beautiful lawns give place to ragged, unkempt farmhouse yards; the great trees vanish, and I see only forlorn buildings, dilapidated stables, men in shirt sleeves and "suspenders," coming home tired with toil; women with calico aprons and prematurely faded faces, performing disagreeable duties. The utterly commonplace and unromantic side of life is expressed by the voice of this beautiful woman.

It is like a blow to my ear.

Her own nature is devoid of romance; there is no sentiment in her soul. And the voice tells the story of temperamental poverty, despite her appearance and surroundings.

Another woman who is sweet and wholesome to look upon, and normal in every respect, speaks, and I grow dazed, as under the influence of some strange narcotic.

She may discuss weather or bonnets; she may speak of art and literature; or she may talk of current gossip. Yet the same result invariably follows. There is a little blur over my brain; a peculiar haze; and the real things of life seem so far away; and I imagine incense curling up from censers in some dim room. Some time, in some past life, she has been a part of such conditions.

Once I met a man of talents; a man of whom the world had great hopes; of whom it expected wonderful achievements. But after I had heard him speak I ceased to believe in his future. His voice was light—as thin as water running over shallow places. It could not be a voice of the depths.

I know a man whose voice will bring calm out of turmoil; peace out of discord; and rest out of weariness. Men, women, children, animals, all feel the magnetism and charm of his modulated tones. Each sentence is a caress, however dignified the words may be.

There are voices which rouse you to action, which stir you with ambition; and there are others which fill you with despondency. There are voices which irritate you like the buzzing of an insect or the grating of a file; and voices which hiss like serpents and snap like turtles.

Sometimes from the rosebud mouth of youth proceeds the cracked voice of age; and from feminine lips the deep bass of masculine tones; but most dreadful of all is the thin, piping voice of femininity issuing from the bearded lips of man.

That which we are, that which we have been in some former incarnation, speaks in our tones.

That which we are, and the result of that which we have been, can be changed and modified by the cultivation of the voice.

Ask Your Best Friend About Your Voice—If You Are Brave

Were all the world to speak in a melodious and pleasing voice, many of the harsh and disagreeable qualities in human nature would disappear.

What does your voice express?

Listen and analyze it; and then ask your best friend, if you are brave enough to hear the answer.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

ADMIRES THE AMERICAN FOR PLACING THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE TITANIC DISASTER

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Sir—For several years I have read your editorials fearlessly attacking every form of wrong and oppression in high and low places.

I have admired your moral courage and independence, but have never felt greater admiration for the display of those qualities than I have this week for your fearless exposure of the men who were directly responsible for the awful tragedy of the Titanic.

This attempt to throw the blame on heroic Captain Smith and Ismay's effort to sneak back to England without landing in America brand him as a renegade and a disgrace to his country. Wait till they get a whack at him on the other side. He'll wish he'd never been born. What a contrast to the sublime self-sacrifice of the noble men and women who calmly met their fate.

That health and energy may be granted you many years to fight the good fight against vice and oppression in every form is the sincere desire of yours, most sincerely,

W. H. P.
